CROWDS CHEER MARTIN ON FLIGHT

100 Men Hurt Fighting San Francisco Pier Fire

FOOD CARGO THREATENED
BY FLAMES

SAN FRANCISCO, May 10.—(UP)—A spectacular waterfront fire broke out on pier 50 today and spread to pier 50-B. Within three hours, damage was estimated at $200,000 and 100 firemen were overcome by smoke and treated for burns, as the flames burned out of control and threatened destruction to both piers.

Started in Pillings
Cargo valued at about $1,000,000 was menaced by shooting flames. The blaze started in creosote soaked wooden pillings underneath the asphalt floor of pier 50.

Flames gradually cracked through melting asphalt, and it was feared the too wooden structures of both piers might be destroyed.

Four hundred firemen and 42 fire engines—virtually the entire firefighting force of the city—were summoned by four alarms. They were augmented by three harbor fireboats, the Dennis T. Sullivan, D. A. White and Edward Scannell, the coast guard cutter Tahoe and two navy minesweepers.

Dense oil smoke which billowed above a 1200-foot front on the two piers virtually "fogged" the ferry lanes between San Francisco and Oakland on San Francisco bay.

Firemen Overcome
As the black smoke rolled out from the wooden superstructures, firemen who attempted to reach the flames in rowboats were overcome and given emergency treatment.

Fire Lieutenant Charles Greenfield was the first serious casualty. He was struck by a stream of

BOARD TOLD OF
DIRIGIBLE FIRE

NAVAL AIR STATION, Lakehurst, N. J., May 10.—(UP)—Commander Charles E. Rosendahl, America's foremost airship expert, told a federal board of inquiry today that the dirigible Hindenburg was "a little lighter or more buoyant" than usual when she nosed through thunderstorms just before she was destroyed by fire Thursday.

Approach Normal
"The approach was normal in every way," Rosendahl said, "but the ship on previous occasions had been heavier when landing."

He faced a three man board headed by South Trimble Jr., a technical board of experts, German observers and federal officials.

Although he was able to give the board a complete technical description of the landing preparations, Rosendahl testified he had no knowledge of the cause of the hydrogen fire that destroyed the airship.

Describing how the Zeppelin came in for the landing, with the ground crew in formation, Rosendahl explained:

Soaked by Rain
"On some occasions the Hindenburg has made a 'heavy' landing. But on this occasion, because the ship had been soaked by rain and was drying out, the ship was a little lighter, more buoyant."

He told how the Hindenburg threw out her starboard and port ropes at 7:21 p. m., E. D. T.

COLLEGE STUDENTS COMPLETE
PLANS FOR FIESTA PROGRAM

Echoes of old California will resound on the Santa Ana Junior college campus Friday when college students and high school seniors celebrate their 10th annual fiesta, which promises to be the largest fiesta celebration ever staged by the college.

Under the general chairmanship of Charles McIntyre, the fiesta committee of 14 members is completing arrangements for the affair. The gala and colorful event has been enlarged in scope by the committee.

The day's activities will begin with the parade of Don Alvaro Tinsor and Dona Margaret Crowell, followed by NYA band music, El Rodeo Riding club and

PIONEER DIES

Samuel Kraemer, 80, a resident of the Placentia district for the past 70 years, who passed away at his home yesterday.

DEATH CLAIMS
CITY FOUNDER

Samuel Kraemer, 80, renowned as one of the founders of the city of Placentia and for 70 years a resident of the Placentia area, died yesterday morning at his Placentia home. He had been ill for a number of months.

Owned Business Buildings
Besides his holdings in Placentia, Kraemer was one of the most extensive business property owners in Anaheim. These holdings included the Kraemer building on East Center just east of the Anaheim city hall, the Angelina hotel and the building in which the Bank of America is located.

During his business life Samuel Kraemer, known intimately as "Sam," was active in the directorate of banks in Anaheim and in Placentia. He served for a long period as vice president of the Anaheim Union Water company.

Kraemer's advent into Orange county was in 1867 when his father, the late Daniel Kraemer, moved to Anaheim with his family from Illinois. Daniel Kraemer two years earlier had visited this area, purchasing 3900 acres of land from the San Juan Cajon de Santa Ana Rancho. The property was principally raw desert land lacking a dependable water supply.

The family set to work fencing a portion of the area and building

MRS. WAYNICK IS DEAD IN ANAHEIM

Heart-broken over loss of her husband in a Pacific Electric railroad crossing accident a year ago, Mrs. Dean D. Waynick, wealthy owner of the Association Laboratories, Anaheim, was found dead yesterday afternoon in her Laguna Beach home under circumstances which pointed to suicide.

Beside the body of Mrs. Waynick, 43, was an empty ether bottle, according to officials. No inquest will be conducted. The laboratories which Mrs. Waynick inherited from her husband were operated in connection with the citrus industry.

Funeral arrangements, at Backs, Terry and Campbell chapel, were being made today. Mrs. Waynick is survived by a son, Earl.

Ocean Hop
Completed
By Merrill

LONDON, May 10.—(UP)—Henry T. (Dick) Merrill and John S. Lambie, co-pilot, completed the season's first flight from New York to London today when they landed at Croydon airport at 6:39 p. m. (1:39 p. m. E.D.T.) after a brief halt at Northweald, Essex, about 20 miles northeast of London.

Overshot Croydon
By the stop at Northweald, Merrill just barely missed setting the record of being the first aviator to make a non-stop flight from New York to London. In the misty weather, he overshot Croydon and came down at Northweald for bearings.

Merrill reported bad weather most of the way across the Atlantic accounted for his delay in arriving, which caused momentary anxiety among airport officials.

Co-pilot Lambie said the plane had averaged about 160 miles an hour on the trip.

The two fliers left immediately for London.

Officials at the airfield at Northweald said Merrill landed at 6:07 p. m. (1:07 p. m. E.D.T.) He left Lloyd Bennett field New York at 4:35 p. m. yesterday which would make his elapsed time to Northweald 20 hours and 31 minutes.

Russell Boardman and John Polando flew from New York to a point near Cardigan, Wales, in 1931 in 31 hours and 42 minutes. In 1935, Felix Waitekus landed at Balinrobe, Ireland, from New York in 23 hours and 15 minutes.

Merrill asked for directions when he landed at Northweald, saying he had lost his way in clouds of mist. After getting his bearings and posing for photographs, he went on at once, expressing hope that he would be back in New York on Thursday, the day after the coronation, with photographs and news reel films.

BAYFRONT LAND
IN COURT TILT

Title to the Newport Harbor American Legion hall, and the Newport Beach Bay Scout cabin, located on a strip of bay front, was at stake today at a hearing in superior court, where the city and the Legion brought suit against a group of individual claimants, to quiet title to 18 lots.

The lots, located in the Lancaster tract, between Bay avenue and the bay, and between Ninth and Tenth streets, are adjacent to other property owned by the city and the Legion, and also property of the individual defendants. Both sides base their claims to title on the ground that the disputed lots are accretion to their respective properties, or are artificially filled and is therefore derelict property. The disputed ground was said to have been formed by dredging deposits in 1918.

The plaintiffs filed four suits, which were consolidated for trial. The defendants are Alice Simmons, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wyman, Mary G. Rendleman, Mrs. W. H. Martin, Lester Martin, Left, Pauline Chapman, Robert and Olive Butler, Robert Fager, Hubert and Besie Grensted, Brookline M. Kupfer, Mary F. Carson also was named as a defendant but filed a disclaimer.

Judge Benjamin F. Warner of San Bernardino is presiding over the trial. City Attorney Roland Thompson of Newport Beach and R. C. Mize of Santa Ana are counsel for plaintiffs. Defense attorneys are H. B. Cornell, Robert T. Williams, Loren A. Butts and Owen E. Kupfer.

SOVIETS CONTINUE
DIRIGIBLE ACTIVITY

MOSCOW, May 10.—(UP)—The Soviet union proceeded today with plans for building a fleet of dirigibles, despite the disaster to the Hindenburg.

C. Khorkov, head of the dirigible trust, said the tragedy should serve as a lesson to Russia to expedite production of Helium for use in its airships. He said dirigibles offered the only practicable link between America and Europe and the reaches within Russia.

TWO DEATHS
BRING AUTO
TOTAL TO 31

Automobile traffic claimed two more lives over the week end in Orange county as one man died of injuries received last Wednesday and another was killed almost instantly when his car catapulted into a 14-foot irrigation ditch near Yorba Linda.

John G. "Jack" Showers, 27, 2061 Bush street, Santa Ana, was driving at 101 highway and Fullerton road, near La Habra, about 2:20 a. m. Wednesday when his car struck a pole, injuring himself and Mrs. Showers, 26. He suffered skull fracture and internal injuries which resulted in his death Saturday at Munford's hospital, La Habra.

Z. Higashi, employed by Joe Dobashi on the Vajar ranch, near Yorba Linda, was making a round of the ranch property Saturday afternoon when he lost control of his car and it dove into an irrigation ditch, 14 feet deep and six feet wide, overturning. Higashi's police dog escaped injury and when a repair car with derrick lifted the demolished vehicle from the ditch, the dog jumped from the wreckage.

Higashi's body was removed to Mortuary and Suters funeral chapel, Fullerton, where an inquest will be conducted by Coroner Earl Abbey.

Showers, for whom an inquest will be conducted at the Brown and Wagner chapel here tomorrow or Wednesday, was born in Neosho Rapids, Kansas, coming to Santa Ana to live six years ago. He was manager of the Safeway meat department at 2223 North Main.

Surviving are the widow, Mrs. Margaret Showers, who is recovering from injuries; mother, Mrs. Mary Showers, Emporia, Kansas; three brothers, William H. Showers, Fort Smith, Ark.; Harry H. Showers, Modesto, and Louis H. Showers, Bakersfield, and four sisters, Mrs. Marvin Dunn, Emporia; Mrs. Edwin Harris, Eugene, Ore.; Mrs. Dan Murphy, Indio, and Mrs. C. C. Finney, Taft.

The two deaths brought the 1937 automobile accident toll for the county to 31. Last year at the same period, 23 such accidents had been recorded here.

FOLSOM CONVICT
COMMITTS SUICIDE

FOLSOM PRISON, Cal., May 10.—(UP)—Only a month before he was to be granted a parole, Charles Vernon Galli, 40, Fresno petty thief, committed suicide today by diving under the rear wheel of a heavy truck, prison officials reported.

WE, THE PEOPLE

By JAY FRANKLIN

ROOSEVELT VS. THE SENATE

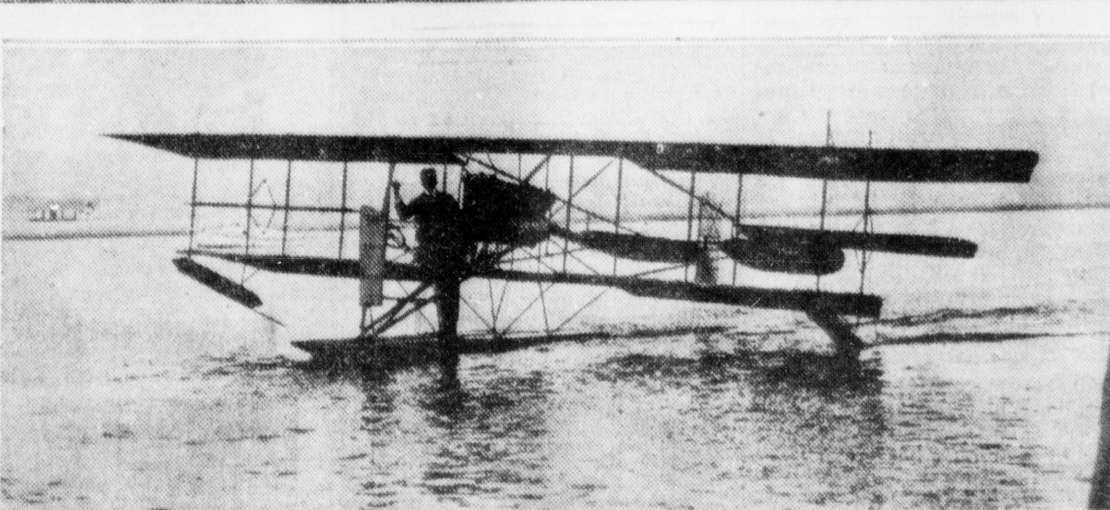

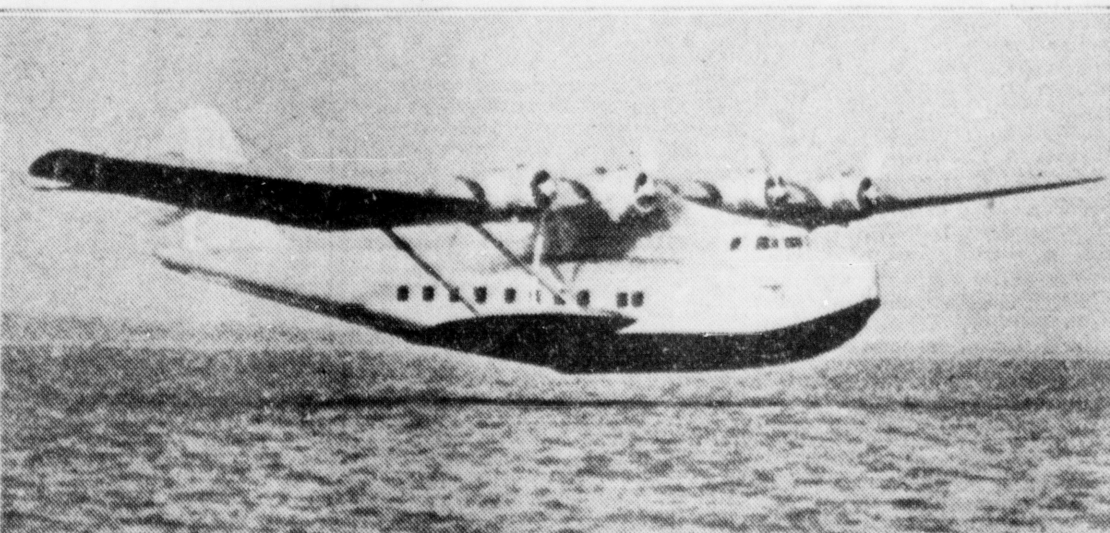

WASHINGTON, D. C.—In bringing the sword of the supreme court issue instead of the well-padded peace of an era of good feeling, Mr. Roosevelt has resumed the old battle of the President against the Senate of the United States.

Sooner or later this was bound to happen. No responsible party leader could let matters stand as left by Woodrow Wilson after his defeat by the senate in the League of Nations fight. The idea that "a little group of wilful men" are free to break party lines at pleasure and to repudiate party leadership is contrary to political common-sense.

In theory, of course, these independent senators are pure-souled patriots who place their country's good before the tinsel rewards of partisan loyalty. But in the first decade of this century the suspicion grew that while this might be true of some senators,

MARTIN RE-ENACTS HISTORIC FLIGHT

Below are pictured two seaplanes. The one at the bottom made the first flight from Newport Beach to Avalon on May 10, 1912. The upper one is the China Clipper which made the trip today, twenty-five years later. On both trips Glenn L. Martin, shown below, was at the controls. On his initial trip no one clamored to accompany the intrepid flyer. Today scores sought that privilege but only 15 made the trip, including six newspapermen. Martin tonight will be the guest of honor at a dinner at the Newport Harbor Yacht club.

TWO MINERS KILLED

MIDDLETON, Calif., May 10.—(UP)—Two miners were killed when the old Mirabel quicksilver mine collapsed Saturday night, it was revealed today. The mine was mentioned in Robert Louis Stevenson's story, "Silverado Squatters." The dead: William Schroeder, 25; Frank Wright, 30.

STUDIOS GRANT
GUILD DEMANDS

HOLLYWOOD, May 10.—(UP)—Hal Roach studios today joined with eight other major studios which capitulated to the demands of the Screen Actors' guild, it was announced by the Will Hays organization, the Association of Motion Picture Producers and Distributors.

Action of the Roach studio, taken by President Hal Roach himself, left only one major lot, Warner Brothers, outside the agreement with the high-salaried screen stars and feature players.

Leaders of the Federated Motion Picture crafts, still at odds with the producers over the question of union recognition, again sent their men and women into the picket lines at the studios today, but the number of these was greatly reduced.

Charles E. Lessing, head of the strike movement, bitterly scored the actors for what he called "letting the strikers down," but Aubrey Blair, secretary of the Screen Actors' guild, pointed out that the guild never had been associated with the crafts' strike, and had not been notified of the walkout when it was ordered. Blair also said the guild had contributed $500 voluntarily to the strikers' fund.

The agreement provided: Preferential shop; minimum of $50 weekly for stock players; increase of $15 to $25 a day for "bit" players; transportation expenses for players riding to and from locations; $5.50 minimum extras, instead of the $3.20 standard for the lowest paid; 10 per cent increase for extras earning up to $15 daily; increase of $20 to $33 weekly for stand-ins, or a daily wage of not less than $6.50 plus overtime; illness clause granting three weeks off yearly on pay for minor players.

BASQUES FORCE
REBEL RETREAT

BILBAO, Spain, May 10.—(UP)—Loyalist infantry captured three strategic hills on the Mt. Sollube sector of the Bilbao front today, forcing the rebel troops to retreat after heavy fighting.

At noon a fierce battle was raging for possession of the main heights of Mt. Sollube to save Bilbao from the rebel onslaught.

The loyalist advance followed through preparations by the defending troops during the night and they went "over the top" at dawn with Mt. Sollube their major objective in the operations.

They first took hill No. 492 and then, Basque and the Santander forces joining, the loyalists stormed and recaptured the other two hills.

Simultaneously, the infantry advanced on Amorebieta in one of the most crucial battles of the Bilbao rebel offensive in northern Spain.

Rebel war planes retaliated, bombing loyalist positions at Ermita and San Martin. The aerial maneuver temporarily checked the Basque advance, it was admitted here.

Strongly reinforced, the insurgents then attacked Rigola, forcing the loyalists to "rectify their lines" by withdrawals on this sector temporarily, their army dispatches reported.

The rebels sent over six tri-motored war planes at 3 p. m. Anti-aircraft guns went into action against the raiders.

RESUME STRIKE PARLEYS

SAN FRANCISCO, May 10.—(UP)—Representatives of hotel strikers and operators resumed negotiations today, seeking basis for a settlement of a walkout which has closed the city's 16 largest hotels for nine days.

HIGH SCHOOLS PREPARE TO CONDUCT NEW COUNTY FORUM

Creation of an Orange county forum, conducted by seven or eight high schools of the county, is being planned for next fall by Orange county and Santa Ana school officials, according to W. W. Wieman, who is in charge of the Orange County Federal forum during the absence of its director, Homer Chaney.

Abandonment of the federal forum is scheduled for May 31, according to Wieman. A few forum meetings will be held during the next two weeks and the project will be definitely closed by the end of the month.

The projects, of which there are 20 throughout the nation, will terminate officially on June 30. According to information received from Washington, the forums will

IS REPEATED

Pages of aviation history were turned back 25 years today, when a giant Pan-American clipper ship landed at Avalon, Catalina island, and Glenn Martin, outstanding figure in aviation, stepped ashore.

Just a quarter of a century ago, almost to the minute, Martin landed in Avalon bay and stepped from another seaplane—the first ever built. On that date he was a Santa Ana boy who had accomplished the impossible. Today when he stepped from the clipper ship crowds lining the Catalina shore cheered for the leading airplane and seaplane designer and builder in the nation.

First Flight 25 Years Ago

Martin, his mother, Mrs. Mina Martin, who encouraged her boy in his dream when everyone else scoffed, a select number of guests and Capt. Ed Musick, who piloted the China Clipper on her first transoceanic flight, took off at 11:45 a. m. today from Cabrillo Beach, near San Pedro, to repeat the flight of 25 years ago in the latest type seaplane.

Thousands of Southern California people lined the beach and breakwater long before time for the takeoff, making it difficult for the official party to reach the small boats that were to transport them to the seaplane lying in the harbor and rising and falling with every swell.

Martin and his mother were the first aboard, aside from Pilot Musick, and greeted the guests as they stepped from the small boats to the plane. The first cheer went up as the four motors started turning over, warming up

BOND MEETINGS
OPEN THURSDAY

Determined to acquaint the taxpayers of Santa Ana with all facts concerning the approaching water bond election, Supervisor Steele Finley will call a series of meetings in Santa Ana during the next two weeks to present data by persons qualified to speak.

The first meeting will be held on Thursday night of this week, according to Finley, but the location has not yet been selected. The meeting Thursday night will be for members of the various Town-club clubs in Santa Ana.

Next week two meetings will be held, one for laboring men, WPA and SRA workers. The third meeting will be for business and professional men and women and members of the various service clubs.

"It is my endeavor," said Finley today, "to present all the facts pertaining to the bond election at these meetings. M. N. Thompson, county flood control engineer, and other persons who are thoroughly acquainted with the water situation in the county will speak. City Engineer J. L. McBride will explain the Santa Ana features of the project.

"Every person attending these meetings will be given an opportunity to ask questions. I would appreciate anyone desiring information to send me their questions to the courthouse and I will learn the facts and answer them at the coming meetings."

is to steady. The actual pulling of the ship to the mooring mast is by a steel cable dropped through the nose.

"When I observed there was a slight difference in the direction of the surface wind, I went from the mooring mast to confer with ground crew officers," Rosendahl said.

"About four minutes after the trail ropes had been dropped and came to the ground ropes and while the steel nose cable was dropping to the ground, although it never reached the ground, there occurred events which interrupted the normal landing procedure.

"The ship at no time was closer to the mooring mast than about 50 feet outside the circular railroad track.

Small Burst of Flame

"I cannot give a complete description of the events which occurred.

"However, there was a small burst of flame on the afterpart of the ship on the top.

"I saw practically the whole stern take fire first. Then the fire spread progressively forward.

"It was rather greatly surprised that there was not more explosion in such an event."

"However, there were mild explosions. But in my opinion, the incident was primarily the burning of the hydrogen.

a ditch from the Santa Ana river. Later he joined with other property owners to build the Cajon ditch which carries water through the Placentia district. Daniel Kraemer was known as a progressive rancher, having purchased the first moving machine and the first sewing machine used in his section. When he died in 1882 he had between 400 and 500 acres of his property improved.

Much of this heritage eventually came into the hands of Samuel Kraemer, partly by inheritance and partly by purchase from other heirs.

"Always stick to the land, my father told me," was one of his guiding principles.

Holidays in Anaheim

During his boyhood on the black ranch, holidays were between, and such as there were he usually spent in Anaheim, then the gay metropolis of what now is Orange county. His days spent at Fourth of July celebrations and at Christmas were joyous days which later had a far-reaching effect upon his business activities. Back in 1905 when the Bank of America building was dedicated he said:

"When I was a boy I always had a good time in Anaheim. I always wanted to do something to show I remember."

In 1886 Samuel Kraemer married Angelina Yorba, daughter of Prudencio and Dolores Yorba and a member of the pioneer Yorba family. She survives.

He leaves eight children, Mrs. Walter Muckenthaler, of Fullerton; Samuel P. Jr., Gilbert U. Mrs. Edward Backs, Lawrence P., Arnold R. Louis and Geraldine Kraemer, all of Placentia; one brother, Benjamin, of Placentia, and two sisters, Mrs. L. E. Miller and Mrs. T. S. Grimschaw, both of Anaheim. Rosary services will be held to night at 8 o'clock in the Backs, Terry and Campbell funeral chapel at Anaheim and a requiem mass will be celebrated Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock in St. Boniface's church. Interment will be in Anaheim cemetery.

List of Pallbearers

Active pallbearers will be John Tuffee, Thomas L. McFadden, Leo J. Sheridan, William Siemens, Horace H. Benjamin and F. A. Backs.

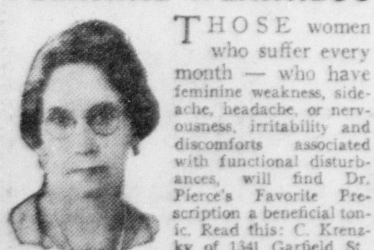

Honorary pallbearers of Anaheim include Judge Homer Ames, Dr. H. A. Johnston, Judge Charles Kuchel, Edward Kelly, Hugo Strodtfoth, Dr. J. L. Beebe, Harry D. Riley, Dr. F. H. Houck, H. N. White, F. A. Yungbluth, H. E. W. Barnes, William Schumacher, J. J. Pwyer, Peter Weiss, Stone Todd, John Kirsch and L. A. Lewis.

Honorary pallbearers of Placentia include A. Pierotti, Hartwell Bradford, Percy Beard, Warren Bradford, William Bielefeld, Louis Jacobsen, Charles Wagner, William Berkenstock, Ralph McFadden, H. M. Hale, the Rev. Frank M. Downing and Frank Rosow.

From Fullerton, C. C. Chapman, F. A. Krause, Angus McAulay, Dr. William Wickett, Arthur Staley, B. E. Beazley, W. L. Hale, S. Cloyd Hartman, Theodore P. Corcoran, T. Anderson, A. H. T. Osborne, B. E. Porter and R. S. Gregory.

Judge R. Y. Williams, A. W. Rutland and Albert Muckenthaler, of Santa Ana; J. P. Greeley, of Balboa; Dave Sanchez, of Los Angeles; Juan de la Guerra, of Hollywood; Dr. Joseph M. King and Joseph Mesmer, of Los Angeles.

FEMININE WEAKNESS

THOSE women who suffer every month—who have feminine weakness, headache, nervousness, irritability and discomforts associated with functional disturbances—will find Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription a beneficial tonic. Read this: "I know of no other medicine that has done me so much good as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It has cured my nervousness, my headache, my irregularity and my general weakness. I feel like a new woman now."—Mrs. J. C. Kennedy, of 1341 Garfield St., Phoenix, Ariz., said.

"Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has been the biggest help for my life. She was weak during the change of life period and her appetite was poor. I knew of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription because my people always had great faith in them and a few bottles of the 'Prescription' soon had Mrs. Kennedy enjoying a good appetite and feeling better in general."

for the flight. A thunderous roar ripped skyward as Musick "gunned" the motors and the ship, nose pointed seaward, started its flight.

Cutting through the waves the ship gradually gained speed until, with the grace of a bird, it lifted into the air and the epochal flight was on.

Circles Over Harbor

Martin did not forget Newport Beach, from where he started on his history-making flight 25 years ago. The ship pointed her nose southward and headed for the Orange county coastline. Arriving over Newport harbor the huge seaplane circled the harbor and twin beach cities of Newport-Balboa until 12:10—the hour and minute he took off 25 years ago. Circling over the city for the last time the plane dipped seaward as a salute to the city and headed to sea, and toward Catalina Island.

At Avalon every resident of the island had gathered on the beach to watch the pages of history turn backward and to greet Martin and his party.

"There he is," was the shout that went up as the airplane—a tiny speck in the sky—came into view. Hundreds of people, lining the shore, strained their eyes as the tiny speck grew into a seaplane—the latest word in aerial transportation. Another shout greeted the ship as it landed gracefully in Avalon bay and taxied toward the shore.

Guests at Luncheon

Just as he did 25 years ago, Martin stepped from the plane to receive a welcome and congratulations from the islanders and was followed by members of the official party. Martin and members of his party on the commemorative flight were honor guests at a luncheon given by the official family of Catalina Island before starting their return trip to the mainland.

After the luncheon, the majority of Martin's guests returned by ship, the others returning with Martin in a clipper ship.

Aboard the clipper when it took off from Cabrillo Beach and making the return trip with Martin in the seaplane was Ted Stephenson of The Register. Stephenson's mother and father were among the few people who flew with Martin in landplanes 25 years ago.

Stephenson's bulletins of the flight follow:

On board the China Clipper with the Glenn L. Martin party.

Mail Delivered

The even dozen passengers, including Glenn Martin, his mother, Mrs. Nina Martin, and your Register correspondent, were taken in small boats from the landing at Cabrillo Beach at 11 a. m. today to the giant Martin built clipper ship moored near the jetty. Mail from the Balboa Island cachet was delivered to Postmaster H. C. Wefeman, Avalon, by the Balboa Island postmaster, W. H. Adams, and loaded on board the ship with Wegeman as custodian.

Hundreds of interested spectators lined the shores and the jetty as the passengers were taken on board the clipper ship and final preparations were made to take off.

Glenn was all smiles as he welcomed guests who were to be with him on the memorial flight marking the 25th anniversary of his history making cross-water flight from Newport bay to Avalon on May 10, 1912. Mrs. Martin, who has watched her son's progress and has aided him with her advice and encouragement since he first succumbed to the "aviation bug" was, if possible, even more thrilled than her illustrious son. She was among the spectators who stood on the sands and watched her son take off for Catalina and fame 25 years ago, not knowing whether she would ever see him again, hoping that all would be well and that he would return safely from his flight across the water.

Head for Newport

Shortly after 11:30, Martin gave the signal that all was in readiness. Capt. Ed Musick, first to fly the China Clipper on its history making flight to the Philippines, "gunned" the four huge motors. The prow of the ship cut through the water, sending spray high on both sides. Gradually, we gained speed, and before we knew it, we were in the air, heading for Newport harbor.

Following the coast line south, we passed over Long Beach, Seal Beach, Huntington Beach, Beach, Newport, we could see hundreds of people on the pier and the beach watching Glenn's clipper ship as it circled over the bay area in preparation for the flight to Catalina. Captain Musick nosed the ship down in a long gliding dip in salute to those on shore.

Off to Catalina

Circling the harbor once more, Captain Musick pointed the nose of the ship toward Catalina Island. The plane left the mainland from a point directly over the Newport pier. It was this same pier that acted as a "fin" in guiding Martin on his first flight across the Catalina channel 25 years ago. It was just 12:10 p. m. when Glenn headed his first sea plane over the pier a quarter of a century ago, and in recognition of this fact, the flight was so arranged today that the clipper ship would leave the mainland at approximately the same time.

All on board were enthusiastic over the privilege of being with Glenn on this memorial flight. Looking through the door that separates the control room from the passenger cabin, we noticed dozens of dials, plugs, switches, and other instruments. When Glenn made his flight 25 years ago all he had in the way of instruments were a compass strapped to his knee, a wrist watch and a barometer. This huge plane is the outgrowth of that contraption made by Martin years ago. This is the acme in

A dozen persons were injured in Orange county highway traffic during the week end, records of police and hospital officials revealed today.

Ada Ashley, 32, of Mexico, was injured early yesterday at Palisades road and Baker street, three miles north of Costa Mesa, when a car operated by John D. Grisct, Jr., 21, Santa Ana, went out of control and overturned.

At Main and Newport road, beside Eddie Martin's airport, a car driven by Warren Simmons, 27, of Cliff House, Newport Beach, went out of control and was ditched. Simmons was jailed on drunk driving charge.

Girl Injured

Following an accident early yesterday on Grand avenue, four miles west of Anaheim, in which Irene Jones, Anaheim, was injured, Wood E. Phillips, 45, Fresno, was jailed on drunk driving charge. Sidney Allen, 21, Los Angeles, was driver of the second car involved. Norma Hill, 19, La Habra, was injured yesterday afternoon on 101 highway near the Los Angeles county line as a car operated by L. Drummon, 19, Los Angeles, was ditched. She was taken to a Whittier hospital.

A sandwich which Miss Iris Bailey, 13, Los Angeles, was eating while she was driving late Saturday night near Costa Mesa, caused a near-tragedy for her and her mother, Carroll Bailey, 42. She lost control of the car which overturned several times. They were treated at St. Joseph's hospital for severe cuts and bruises. The accident occurred on Newport road three miles north of Costa Mesa.

A car operated by Walter Swanberger, 1130 South Van Ness, was involved in collision with a car operated by an unidentified driver at Walnut and Cypress Saturday evening but no one was injured. Dr. J. R. Wade, 319 South Main was riding with Swanberger, police reported. The second driver had gone before his name could be ascertained.

This huge plane with its four motors that regularly spans the Pacific with monotonous regularity is the result of a man's faith in aviation. A man, who 25 years ago had a dream and nerve enough to follow an ideal. We begin to see that this flight today is in recognition of an achievement that is even greater than we have realized.

water from a high pressure hose and thrown 20 feet inside the pier and carried out unconscious by fellow firemen. Taken to a hospital, his condition was reported to be critical.

The fire spread to pier 50-B by burning along a wooden frame-work underneath a concrete runway connecting the two piers. Pier 50-B was loaded with a valuable cargo of food supplies from eastern and Alaskan ports.

The Alaska Packers corporation freighter Delaroff, tied up at pier

50, was blistered before it was set adrift into San Francisco bay and later taken into tow and saved by a tug. Origin of the fire was undetermined.

6 MEN, 150 WOMEN AT LOVE SERVICE

OKLAHOMA CITY, May 10.—(UP)—Dr. W. A. McKeever, 65, who believes in helping love find a way, appealed today to the women to persuade "those frisky calves of men" to attend the next meeting of his love church.

One hundred and fifty women, most of them plump and elderly, attended the first meeting yesterday. In a corner six men huddled protectively.

FOUR IN JAIL AS GAMBLERS

In a raid conducted Saturday night in Sunset Beach by Deputy Sheriffs G. F. McKelvey and James Musick, four men were arrested and booked at county jail on charges growing out of asserted gambling activities. All were from Long Beach.

Thomas S. Meagher, 44, proprietor; Eugene J. Sullivan, 36, clerk and E. A. Dodge, 30, waiter, were charged with gambling, while a vagrancy charge was filed against Terry Cowan, 44.

According to the officers, Meagher, proprietor of the place, located above Sam's tavern, and Cowan, admitted they had been operators on a gambling boat off the coast. Officers assertedly believed the men were trying to gain a "gambling foothold" at the coast city. It was estimated they had been operating the place for 10 days. Cowan, in charge of a roulette wheel at time of the raid, had no "customers" at the time and was not charged with gambling.

"Two-Way Break" Looms For Taxpayers In Ruction

"PRIVATE CASH" MAY POUR OUT IN LEGAL TILT

BY GEORGE HART

One good lawsuit leads to another.

This column last Saturday discussed efforts of the county supervisors to avert Auditor Lambert's mandamus action against the board's purchasing agent, in the typewriter row. It was suggested that the supervisors were reluctant to invite criticism from the taxpayers by spending the money of said taxpayers in defending an action that meant nothing to the taxpayers, but was merely a quarrel between officials.

Now, certain legal opinion around the courthouse is directly challenging the legal right of the supervisors to so expend the taxpayers' money. District Attorney Menton, who gave an opinion that Lambert was right in the typewriter disagreement, and that the supervisors have no authority to dictate to elected county officials what they shall purchase, has assumed that the supervisors have a right to go ahead and employ special counsel with public funds, since the district attorney is disqualified from defending them. However, the district attorney was on his horse when he so expressed himself, and there was nothing official about his remark.

Some other lawyers hold differently. They think the supervisors have no more right to use public funds in the controversy than has Lambert. Lambert is hiring his attorney with his own money. His suit is filed against another official, the board's purchasing agent. Some lawyers think that neither of these officials has any more right to use public funds in their quarrel than the other has, nor that the supervisors, were they actually named defendants, would have any greater right.

In fact, one member of the bar contends that Auditor Lambert has more right to use public funds to support his position than the purchasing agent of the supervisors. He puts it this way: The district attorney is the legal advisor to the auditor as well as to the purchasing agent or the supervisors, all on an equal basis. In this controversy over the purchasing policy he rendered an opinion to the purchasing agent, which said that the auditor, or any elected official, had the right to decide his own purchases; that the purchasing agent had no authority to make purchases except as requisitioned by the official.

The auditor is following that opinion of the county's official legal advisor. The purchasing agent is going against it. The auditor should not be required to use his own funds to enforce an official ruling. The purchasing agent or the supervisors should not be permitted to use public funds to defy the official ruling.

That's a point that Lambert himself may have to decide before it is over. Because, of course, the supervisors probably will go ahead

BURNOOSE CLAD MEN ON TREK

Below is a group of Orange County Shriners who plan a colorful trek to Los Angeles for the Picturesque Durbar June 12. Those in the photograph, left to right, are:

Francis C. Tomlinson, president Whittier Shrine club; Vane M. Stedman, secretary Whittier Shrine club; Otto L. Evans, president Orange County Shrine club; F. Carl Mock, potentate's ambassador from Santa Ana; Thomas Haster, potentate's ambassador from Anaheim.

MOHAMMEDAN FESTIVITIES TO ATTRACT LOCAL LODGE GROUP IN COLORFUL CARAVAN PARADE

Thousands of Shriners from Southern California, including scores of nobles from this district, are making plans to attend the day and night of Mohammedan festivities, which will make up the Sirdah Hadj Durbar, sponsored by Al Malakiah temple at Los Angeles, Saturday, June 12.

and hire special counsel to defend the purchasing agent against Lambert's suit. Then the special counsel will file a bill for services. It will be up to Lambert, as auditor, to okay or disallow that bill. That may mean another lawsuit, for if Lambert is advised that the claim is not legal, he would be personally liable if he paid it. It may require a court decision to determine the point of legality.

Y. M. C. A. Leader To Talk To Club

Harold J. Rounds, foreign secretary of the Y. M. C. A., who today addressed the Orange County Y directors, will be the speaker at the regular luncheon meeting of the Rotary club tomorrow, Ralph C. Smedley announced today.

Rounds, who recently returned from Warsaw, Poland, is well versed in the problems of the Y. M. C. A. in Europe and the general economic and political conditions of central Europe.

While his address at the Y. M. C. A. today probably will be on the work of that organization, it is believed he also will discuss general conditions in Europe.

Reports to police that children have been breaking windows from a garage building belonging to the Santa Ana school system, Walnut and Parton, adjacent to the high school, were being investigated today.

Shrine clubs from all over the southland will form their caravan headed by Shrine club officers and potentate's ambassadors, each caravan wearing its own distinctive type of burrhead or Arabic cape, as shown in the picture accompanying the article.

Many Temples

Ben All, Sacramento; Islam, San Francisco; Ahmes, Oakland; El Zariban, Phoenix; and Al Bahr, San Diego are among the other Shrine temples joining with Al Malakiah temple in this festive assembly that will bring together more fest-wearers than are ever congregated outside of an international convention.

Potentate Lawrence Cobb of Al Malakiah will preside as Grand Emir of the Durbar with Angus M. Campbell as chief maharajah; Ernest L. Hurst, vice maharajah; and George J. Ramsey as Gaekwar of Baroda.

Special Ceremonies

HUNDREDS HEAR EVANGELIST AT SUNDAY SERVICE

Hundreds of Santa Anans attended week-end services at the Tabernacle, Sycamore and Wilshire streets, to hear Evangelist R. A. Anderson and his co-workers in a series of services.

Last night Evangelist Anderson spoke on "Armageddon" and Saturday night Arthur Maxwell, the "Uncle Arthur" of Bedtime Story fame, was the speaker. In addition to Maxwell, who spoke directly to the children, telling them the story of "Johnnie in Far-off China," the male glee club from the Southern California Junior college, sang several numbers.

Evangelist Anderson described the failure of world conferences and leagues to effect world peace, stressing in conclusion that the armament race of all nations can lead only to world disaster.

"Never was a species more perilously poised than ours, at the present time," he said. "Communism, Socialism, Fascism, and all the other 'isms' so real to this decade fail to bring about the real ideal of a new world."

Hearing a report that a man asserted was driving drunk on Main street early yesterday morning, city police stopped Donald McLeon, Riverside, at Second and Main. An examination revealed he had been drinking. He was held for one hour and released after proving himself sobered.

JIMMIE FIDLER IN HOLLYWOOD

HOLLYWOOD, May 10.—Personal Observations: Gary Cooper always makes me feel he would rather use a horse when in a hurry than his low-slung phaeton. Jeanette MacDonald and Jean Harlow have the sit-on-one-foot habit. That hesitating confusion that identifies Frank Morgan's screen portrayals has invaded his real life conversation. The colony lost some of its glamour when cowboy extras gave up the Hollywood-Cahuenga stand. It's easy to guess when Chester Morris's insomnia has been rampant, because he has rubber tires under his eyes.

Barbara Stanwyck too often misses the ash tray when she flicks her cigaret, even in drawing rooms. Mary Astor's soft belle her diary notoriety. William Powell likes to cup his hands as a chin-crutch when talking man-to-man. Dark glasses have become a badge of star-privacy, extras now wear them to fool us. Marlene Dietrich's deep-into-your-eyes stare gives me spine ticks.

You will know that Miriam Hopkins is about to laugh when a tiny suggestion of a squint tightens her eyes. George Burns would rather be called "Best Dressed Man" than find a swell radio gag. Perhaps it is to emphasize his serious quality that Franchot Tone dons spectacles during important discussions. When Elissa Landi does not want to meet set-visitors she starts scribbling so the assistant director can say she is working on her new novel. Nothing is quite so cheerful as Shirley Temple's "Hello."

Harry P. Edington and I have the same dentist, Edington, in case you do not know, is the astute manager who had the swell hunch to put Greta Garbo on a silence diet, and has that idea paid dividends! At any rate, when I plunged into the dentist's chair today to hear the worst, Doc told me that Edington had been in with a jumping tooth-ache. The manager was at MGM studio ten miles away when a raw nerve opened fire. He leaped into his car and raced with the wind to the dentist. "As he came through the door," the Doc said, "Harry looked at his watch and cracked, 'Well, if any cops are chasing me for speeding, they'll get here in three minutes!'"

Every field of business has its own way of initiating a newcomer. In a machine shop, an apprentice is sent for a "left-handed monkey wrench." In a print shop, he is ordered off in quest of a "column stretcher." Doris Weston, a stage actress recently out of New York, got her introduction to movie tomfoolery on a Dick Powell set the other day.

The scene called for her to hasten across a room and fling open a door. But the door refused to budge. The director cried "Cut!" Whereupon Powell walked across the set

Townsend Topics

By W. F. Rockwell

(Editor's Note: The comment and opinions of W. F. Rockwell, as appearing in this column are not necessarily those of The Register.)

The high and mighty rulers of affairs seem to think that the wisdom of the common people is foolish, and that their own foolishness is wisdom.

"But God hath chosen the foolish things of the world to confound the wise and God hath chosen the weak things of the world to confound the things which are mighty."

The Townsend plan is so simple and easy to understand that it is called "cookeyed" by the wisecracks who seem to prefer complicated language hard for a "Philadelphia lawyer" to understand. Perhaps such wordy phrases are used to afford unseen loopholes allowing evasion of right doing for the benefit of all instead of being for the protected few, resulting in the numerous probes and exposures of the many undesirable actions of those presumed to be elected or appointed to work for the welfare of all the people.

The Rev. George H. Wikom of San Bernardino, one of the leading speakers in the Townsend movement, will talk at club 5 tomorrow night at the church on the corner of Richland and Parson streets. Those who hear him will be enthused.

W. R. Cogswell of San Bernardino, will be the speaker at the Memorial Hall in Huntington Beach tomorrow night.

and opened the door with one finger. "I suppose you'll be blaming your blunder on the carpenters," he told her. And while Miss Weston blushed over that one, the director snapped, "Are you all thumbs, Doris?"

Of course, they had to explain to the embarrassed girl that two burly stage hands were holding the door when she tried it, and that the cameras were not turning at all. It strikes me that in some ways, Hollywood is more cruel with its newcomers than other trades—so many people are standing around watching.

Be sure to come to the ice cream social club No. 2 is having tonight at 509 West 4th street at 7:30 p. m.

Bazaar! bazaar! bazaar! That's the "big idea" from now till May 27-28-29.

Club No. 8 will not meet Tuesday May 11, but will join with club 6 at Townsend Hall, 509 W. Fourth street to enjoy the big Fun Fest.

Ladies will meet every Tuesday at 2:30 p. m. to work on the bazaar.

W I T H H O M E R C A N F I E L D

Bomer Canfield, who usually presides over this column, is vacationing. Tonight he has called in to bid for him Arthur H. Shank, who is "Bob Baker," the candid mikeman of "Hollywood in Person."

By ARTHUR H. SHANK

The glamorous motion picture stars whom the public sees on the cinema screen are not the best actors in Hollywood.

I hope Homer Canfield will excuse me if I appear to take advantage of the hospitality of his column by opening it with such a startling statement.

But as the candid mikeman of "Hollywood in Person," whose job is to visit a different movie lot daily and bring the listeners candid impressions of stars, directors and technicians, I was compelled to make this conclusion.

The best actors in Hollywood are not the main heroes or the fascinating heroines so beloved by the public. The champions of drama are the film directors, and rightly so. They are the men who tell the stars how to play the parts. It never occurred to me that it was because they knew how to do it, until I brought a director to the microphone for the first time.

He read his lines more effectively than any star. He needed no coaching. It made me wonder why movie directors aren't given parts in pictures where exceptional dramatic ability is needed.

Seeing Hollywood behind the scenes has given me many delightful surprises. I have learned that executives aren't the tyrants they are often painted to be, and that the bigger the stars the more human and democratic they are.

Recently it was my privilege to interview Jesse Lasky, one of the pioneer executives in motion pictures and one of Hollywood's greatest figures. I called on Lasky at his office to talk over the interview with him in sincere modesty and eagerness, he asked:

"Mr. Baker, is there any chance that I might be able to hear my voice on a record afterward? You know, I have never heard myself speak."

My pleasure at finding such childlike simplicity and eagerness in a man of Lasky's position and achievement was beyond description.

Movie people are supposed to be sophisticated, but I find that they are still "mike shy." They seem to be afraid of radio. An old doorman on the Wanger lot gave me the most satisfactory explanation.

"When we make a film and it isn't quite right, all we have to do is cut it out and do it over again," he said. "What picture people are afraid of is going on the air knowing that they have only one chance. A mistake on the microphone can't be recalled."

Thank you, Homer Canfield, and best wishes from the movie lots of Hollywood to you and your readers.

We, The People

By JAY FRANKLIN

ers of the presidency and from 1868 to 1900, our chief executives were mainly "figure-heads. Theodore Roosevelt was the first one to toss Aldrich and Boies Penrose could ignore T. R. and run the country and the party without him.

Wilson's defeat on the League issue put a senatorial clique in the position to shuffle and deal Warren G. Harding's administration like a pack of cards. Only now—nearly a generation after disastrous event and largely as a result of the big business mismanagement which resulted from it—is it possible for Franklin Roosevelt to resume the battle for reasonable party government in the senate of the United States.

Old traditions die hard. Only a handful of living senators began their service under the old appointive method but big business control of political funds and the high cost of primary elections have perpetuated many of the evils of the old senate. It is still hard to say whether the senate is a representative assembly or a council of corporate "elder statesmen."

Mr. Roosevelt's court program is designed to force the senate to become a representative assembly which will speak for the people of the different states and follow the dictates of party discipline and doctrine. Independents like Senator Norris of Nebraska, Senator La Follette of Wisconsin and Senator Borah of Idaho remain to remind us that, in this process, we shall lose something rather fine and important to our national life when the senate becomes as democratic as the house of representatives.

Yet this is the price we must pay to get rid of the intolerable situation in which a Carter Glass of Virginia can meekly seek and accept New Deal endorsement in 1936 and then in 1937, when the votes are in the bag, turn and attack the New Deal measures in the interest of high finance.

How else can we terminate a system which permits a Senator Burke of Nebraska to pose as an ardent and liberal New Dealer and then organize a revolt against the New Deal's judiciary reform bill? How can party government in the United States continue when men who were elected or re-elected on a program of "Trust Roosevelt!" promptly show their hostility and distrust of his leadership?

This is an issue which cuts deeper than the vital problem of curbing the judicial soviet which have been running the country for the big corporations. It is the whole issue of democracy. Democracy cannot possibly work if the popularly elected members of our legislative assemblies seek office on a mandate to support any man or measure (be it New Deal or Old Order, be it Roosevelt or Coolidge), and then withhold their support or turn to opposition with the first major move the administration makes on the strength of this mandate.

So the court fight must carry over into the 1938 and 1940 elections. If Messrs. Roosevelt and Farley believe in democracy they have no choice but to fight any and every Democratic senator who has broken faith with the people who voted for Roosevelt and the New Deal in 1932, 1934 and 1936. This is irrespective of whether the Roosevelt plan is a good or a bad policy. For only by the defeat of these rebels can the democratic process be tested and confirmed in American government. This issue is drawn much more sharply than any one at Washington cares to admit. Everyone knows whom the President represents. He represents the 27,000,000 voters who trusted him to give substance to their hopes and satisfaction to their needs, with due regard for the basic rights of the 17,000,000 who voted for Gov. Alfred M. Landon. The question is: Whom does the senate represent?

From time to time, I shall try to answer this question. At the moment it is fair to say that whether we talk of Norris of Nebraska, Connally of Texas or Wagner of New York, very few senators really represent the people of the states which elected them. At best, they are elder statesmen. At worst, they are well, we shall see what they are.

ORANGE COUNTY FLOOD PROJECT IS FORUM TOPIC

At the last meeting of the Forum for Political Economic Education until October, to be held at 8 p. m. tomorrow in the Santa Ana Junior college building, the proposed water bond issue to enable Orange county to secure $13,000,000 of federal funds to assist in developing flood protection and water conservation, will be discussed.

T. E. Stephenson, county treasurer, will be program chairman, and a representative of the county flood control engineer's office will be present to assist with technical questions.

Panel Discussion

The forum will consist of a panel discussion rather than a debate tomorrow night, with R. B. Newcom as panel leader. "No question is more important to the people of Orange county than flood control and water conservation," Stephenson said today. "A proper solution to our water problems is necessary to our welfare. We need this intelligent presentation of the possibility of obtaining federal assistance in this vital project."

At a meeting held recently, members of the forum board of directors voted to discontinue the regular Tuesday night meetings until fall. The public is urged to come to the last meeting night, and to voice opinions regarding the bond issue and the proposed obtaining of federal assistance.

NYE ASKS INQUIRY ON SPANISH PLOTS

WASHINGTON, May 10.—(UP)—Sen. Gerald P. Nye, R., N. D., today asked the senate to authorize senatorial inquiry into alleged espionage in the United States by sympathizers of the Spanish rebel regime. Nye charged Juan Francisco De Cardenas, former Spanish ambassador here, was involved in the activities.

Nye charged that the center of the alleged espionage appeared to be a firm of steamship owners and operators with headquarters at 17 Battery Place, New York City, known as Garcia and Diaz. Members of the firm, Nye asserted, are Manuel Diaz and Marcelino Garcia, neither of whom, he said he had been informed, are citizens of the United States. They operate ships, he added, between New York and Italy, Spain, Mexico and Central America.

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Every principal policy of relief spending makes for more, rather than fewer, dollars of expense for the Federal government at a time when spending in excess of revenue has become increasingly dangerous. And yet the problem of relief remains.

At the very heart of the policy is the system of centrally controlled federal allocation of money, rather than of federal aid applied where necessary and a determined policy of state contribution except where it clearly can't be made.

This may sound like an academic distinction, but it is intensely practical and vitally important. You are mayor of a great city. You know that the federal system takes you out of town, in revenue, for relief more than it puts back. You know, to the extent that you don't get "your share" back, the people of your town will be paying for relief in every town in the country.

Will you be on the job trying to force the uttermost farthing—morning, noon and night? Will a duck swim? If you don't, you are not looking out properly for the relative interest of your own people in the federal community.

This is a major influence working 24 hours a day on every governor, mayor and county commissioner in the United States to get the greatest possible federal contribution by every available pressure. The combination of all these thousands of separate pressures is an irresistible national glacier forcing multiplied and inflated federal spending, with accuracy and necessity left as minor considerations and getting yours as the controlling influence.

Centralized federal spending, with no obligation of local matching, works in the same direction in another way. Every dollar a local political official can get from without, relieves him of just that much responsibility for his own fiscal administration. When he has to raise part of the money himself and be responsible for its effect on local taxes and property values, his political responsibility forever presses down on extravagance.

When he has no such responsibility all these incentives work in precise reverse. Whatever he can get relieves his own tax load, improves his own administration, and adds nothing but lustre to his fame. It is all champagne and no headache. That is an intangible but constant influence to continued extravagance.

The very form of relief works in the same way. It must be "work" relief—never grants in aid of distressed families. The latter form of relief admittedly would cost about half of what we are spending or relieve twice as many people as we now relieve. The argument for work relief exclusively is so silly and has been so often exploded that the explosion will not be repeated here.

We are now talking about the effect of that form of relief to make reckless and unnecessary cost. In the first place, its overhead cost paid largely to non-relief sources is more than 30 per cent. In the next, work relief requires the invention of "projects," whether they are justified or not, and the employment of all kinds of labor whether it is efficient or not. Every locality naturally strains its ingenuity and imagination to invent projects, and the notorious inefficiency of some of the labor multiplies the cost of them. If relief were work relief where the project is necessary and the labor appropriate, and money relief in other cases, many people could be cared for with less expense.

The load of alien inclinations on relief rolls is another inflation of proper cost. The policy is not to count them and the orders are not to discriminate in favor of Americans. How much this has added to cost, nobody can know, but that it inflates cost, nobody can doubt. Every single policy thus tends to extravagance, restriction of worthy relief and perhaps to double or even treble the cost of relief.

Why are these policies? Not one could be intelligently defended in any fair forum. What chance for debate of them has there ever been? These are the policies for the simple reason that Harry Hopkins prefers them. It's a billion dollar preference. It ought to be reviewed.

It Seems to Me by HEYWOOD BROWN

STAMFORD Conn., May 10.—Whenever I get smart-alecky about nature, that old lady, a most powerful Katinka, rocks me with a right. Often I have disparaged country nights and celebrated the twilights of the town. I used to wish I could find ruin in urbs as the shepherd in Central Park, so that it would be possible to quit the sylvan scene for a night club by the simple process of dropping my crook and hailing a taxi driver.

But on Wednesday night the Ridge put on a show which knocked me clear of my cockney notions. Coming home from the plant a little after dusk, I found a night which was luminous, strangely still and fragrant. Indeed, I found my nose.

Twice broken and a million times effited, it has served me for years only in hay fever season. In night clubs I suppose there are many scents and perfumes. In advertisements I read of Kiss Me Quick and Unit de Sacre Bleu, but even when the tables stand close together I can detect nothing but a faint aroma of burnt bacon.

A Night of Nights
But on most palpably I knew I walked by fields where grass had been fresh cut and there were apple blossoms and cherry trees. The blooms upon the pear tree which had once seemed as dead as a speech by Chairman Hamilton had led out in the night like highwaymen to block my progress down the silver thread which served by day as a dirt road.

There was no moon, but the householder of the heavens, like a prudent New Englander, set all the candles out when the fuses failed him. And this was a more kindly light for the moon in any quarter set on edge the teeth of an old Calvinistic frog who lives at the bottom of the lake. To him Luna is just another Gypsy Rose Lee, and as she strips he sets up a raucous repetition of "Deep damnation! Deep damnation!"

Just One Harsh Note

Up to the top of the hill a farmer friend was burning wood for no apparent reason, and in the valley I caught the faint dissonance of a distant skunk. But skunk that was acceptable and had its place in the symphony of fragrance.

I followed my new-found nose, and by a break it might have led me clear across the border into Maine, where curious folk walk with their heads in the crook of the elbow. But just beyond the blacksmith shop an Airedale shattered the silence and broke the enchantment.

I knew then that I had been remiss in failing to bring a glass jar to preserve some portion of the night against the onset of more bitter weather. Standing upon the pantry shelf amid the alien corn and canned salmon, it might serve to remind me that God is good and that for a little while I had been permitted to recapture and to revel in my fifth sense.

An Airedale Ruins It All
"Good dog," I said, "shut your darned mouth." But he could not be comforted, for he, too, had a nose, and while I was intent upon apple blossoms, he was only conscious of the disturbing presence of a foreign mutton eater from over the top of the hill. It takes, I suppose, all kinds of smells to make a world.

"Bow wow!" continued the Airedale, and since Henry, my police and fire dog, was not present to protect me, I turned upon my heel and trundled home. But before I went to bed I wandered into the kitchen and found Henry, asleep and whimpering. I believe it was his Dalmatian unconscious which

TROJAN SOPHS IN LIME LIGHT AT COLISEUM

LOS ANGELES, May 10.—New formations and forward and lateral passes will be featured tomorrow when the annual spring practice football game of the University of Southern California is played in the Los Angeles Coliseum at 3 p. m.

Howard Jones, veteran Trojan mentor, has been making much use of wide open plays during the spring drill. The contest will not only serve as a test for the new players, but will give a host of footballers a chance to show what they can do under fire.

Assistant Coaches Jeff Cravath and Hobbs Adams will direct the reserves, while Jones will coach the first stringers. Jones' starting eleven will probably consist of Ray Wehba and Slater, ends; Don McNeil and Ray George, tackles; Thomassin and Smith, guards; Tony Tonelli, center; Ambrose Schindler, quarterback; Coye Dunn and Hoffman, halves, and Dick Berryman or Sangster, full.

Cravath and Adams will probably use the following men on their starting team: Bill Fisk and Dennis Noor, ends; Alton Elberg and Bob Winslow, tackles; Larry Knowlton and Bill Harmon, guards; John de Hets, center; Don Keller, quarter; Willis Wood and Boyd Morgan, halves, and Marvin McCullough, full.

Tickets for the game may be obtained free from the S. C. ticket office on the Trojan campus.

Fullerton Tracksters Lose All-Southern Meet To L. A.

Suffering one of its few reverses in any branch of athletics this year, Fullerton junior college today had to be satisfied with a strong second in the all-Southern California association track championships.

Making up in seconds, thirds and fourths what Fullerton trailed in first places, Los Angeles took the '37 title with 56 points to Fullerton's 47. It was just a dual meet between the Yellowjackets and the Cubs, Glendale finishing a poor third with 32½.

Santa Ana athletes were limited to 7 points. Bias Mercurio jumped 6:1 for third place. George Griffith—who stands only 5 feet 5 inches in his stocking feet—had the best jump of his career, clearing 6 feet for fourth place. Willard Lutton came up with an unexpected fifth place in the broad jump. Bob Reif was placed fifth in the high hurdles after three hurdlers were disqualified for knocking over too many barriers.

Coach Bill Cook said today that he didn't believe he would send any of the Dons to the Fresno relays. There is a possibility, however, that some of the Santa Ana's may enter the Compton invitational meet May 21, a night affair.

Fullerton's great quarter-mile, Erwin Miller, turned in the outstanding performance of the meet. He won the 440 in 49.5 seconds and returned later to anchor Fullerton's mile relay team to a sensational victory. Miller made up some 20 yards on the last Los Angeles runner.

The results: 100-yard dash—Jeffrey (R), Sinclair (LA), Carr (LA), Hines (LA), Casey (P), Time, 16.5. 220-yard dash—Jeffrey (R), Sinclair (LA), Servey (V), Casey (P), Cushman (LA), Time, 22.25. 440-yard dash—Miller (P), Sides (LA), Ranby (G), Bellenger (SB), Parry (R), Time, 49.5. 880-yard run—Moore (F), Wieman (SD), Wilson (SM), Avery (LA), Vordam (SM), Time, 2m. 1.6s. ## HUBBELL TIES RUBE'S RECORD

By GEORGE KIRKSEY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

NEW YORK, May 10.—Cincinnati's "rough house" Reds clinched a four-game winning streak yesterday by annihilating the Philadelphia Phillies, 21-10, with a burst of power unequalled by any team this year. The Reds' 24-hit attack, including three home runs by Alex Karpowicz, was the feature of a banner-day that embraced these occurrences:

Carl Hubbell's 20th straight National league win. Dizzy Dean's fifth consecutive win this year. Philadelphia and Cleveland tie for American league lead. World champion Yankees in fifth place.

Though still in the National cellar with five wins and nine loss, the Reds were only a game behind the Chicago Cubs who have seven victories against nine setbacks, and are in fourth place.

Hubbell pitched the Giants to a 4-1 verdict over the Cubs for his fourth victory of the season which ran his two-year streak to 20, tying the record of "Rube" Marquard who ran 19 straight in 1912 and had a carryover from the 1911 season. Hubbell's win came over Bill Lee, last hurler to best him in 1936. In defeating the Brooklyn Dodgers, 7-1, Dean was the whole show. It gave him more wins for the year than any other major league hurler. And he contributed two singles to his own cause. In 46 innings, only two runs have been earned off him. The victory enabled St. Louis to keep within a game and a half of the leading Pirates.

HERE'S MORE ABOUT HOW TO PLAY GOLF

I concentrated on starting my club back with the left arm and keeping the wrists free at the top of the backswing.

This also helped to correct the hook which I had developed. I tasted my first real competition in August, 1936. I asked off from work and entered an invitation tournament in Fort Worth. Most of the best golfers in the southwest were entered. I won it, beating Hap Massingill, veteran Texan ex-champion, by shooting a 66 in the morning and coasting home in the afternoon.

I remember this tournament very well because of an incident that occurred in the second round match with Henry Robinson of Oklahoma.

I was leading one up on the eighth hole when, in sizing up a putt, I walked over to the other side of the hole and laid my club down.

Robinson claimed the hole, pointing to a rule then existing in the southwest which forbade a golfer to touch his club on the opposite side of the green from where his ball lay.

PLAY THE SHOT

It was intended for sand green play so that a golfer couldn't trace the course of his ball on sloping surfaces. We were playing on a grass green and it made me furious to think that he would resort to such a technicality.

I lost the next several holes. Then I pulled myself together. "Here I am getting mad at him and hurting nobody but myself," I said to myself.

So I cooled off and immediately got hot on the course. On the last four holes I fired in a drive, a three, another three, and a douse. I could not have done that had I remained peeved.

It's a lesson I learned and one all golfers should learn. Play the shot you're playing, not the last one. Don't moan and groan and curse. If you lose a stroke by tough luck don't throw another one away in anger.

It took me a long time to steady myself and control a bad disposition, but I believe that I've finally got it in hand.

I know that two years ago I could not have pulled myself together in the last nine the way I was able to do in the Masters' Tournament.

DERBY, TROJAN VAULTERS GIVE MAJOR THRILL

By JAMES A. SULLIVAN
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

The Kentucky Derby, a pair of pole vaulting twins from the University of Southern California, and Earl Bezley, turf wizard gave sports fans their major thrills over the week-end.

War Admiral, great son of Man o' War, won the Derby. Bezley's Rockwood won the California Derby and Bill Sefton and Earl Meadows of U. S. C., rapidly approaching a 15 foot "dream mark" set a new record of 14 feet, 8½ inches, in the pole vault.

The summary of top sports events from the Pacific coast view point follows:

HORSE RACING—War Admiral, son of the immortal Man o' War, won the Kentucky Derby before 75,000, largest crowd ever to see a horse race in the United States. Pompon, Witherbrook favorite, was second and Reapling Reward third. At Bay Meadows, Earl Bezley's Rockwood won the $5000 California Derby with Brown Jade second, Sir Oracle third. At Agua Caliente San Luis Rey won the feature of the reopening of racing. Valuable race horses, including Triple Action, a Preakness candidate, were destroyed when fire swept barns at Pimlico, Md.

TRACK AND FIELD—Earl Meadows and Bill Sefton, University of Southern California, set a new world record for the pole vault when each cleared 14 feet, 8½ inches, in a dual meet at Stanford, S. C. won the meet, 7½ to 5½, to clinch the Southern division coast conference dual title.

In the night's racing, Lyons was set upon by four of Nygra's Italian admirers as he left the rink and soundly thumped around the head before rescued.

The Roller Derby takes both speed and endurance. It was too much for Joie Ray, the old mile runner. And yet Mrs. Ma Bogash, 42-year-old wife of a Wabash railroad fireman, has no trouble skating around as her son's partner. She has been in 11 derbies and finished in 10 of them.

She's there to stay, is Ma Bogash.

And so, it seems, is the Roller Derby.

It's the brain-child of Leo Seltzer, formerly a moving picture operator on the west coast. Seltzer, whose hair is generously sprayed with gray at 33—perhaps, because he made $2,000,000 promoting 23 Walkathons, and then lost it—staged the first derby in Chicago in August, 1935.

TWO ROAD SHOWS

The derby has been rolling along briskly since with two troupes staging shows around the countryside now.

Already New York, Chicago (four times), Miami (twice), Cincinnati, (twice), Louisville (twice), St. Louis, Kansas City, Indianapolis, Detroit and Cleveland have thrilled to the high-geared hurdy-gurdy.

Now the derbyists plan to rumble on to Philadelphia, Toledo, Akron and out to the Pacific coast. Seltzer, shrewd, is after another $2,000,000. He has copyrighted the entire show (rules, etc.) so that there can be no opposition.

The derby is conducted somewhat like a six-day bike race. The contestants sleep on cots in the center of the floor in full view of the crowd and there are sprints which the skaters call jams.

The Roller Derby lasts 21 days, there's a boy and girl on each team and they don't skate all day and night—just from 7:30 p. m. until 12 midnight.

The boys skate against one another for 15 minutes, then the girls take the floor and race for 15 minutes. A sprint lasts two minutes. If the sprinters can't pick up a lap on the pack in that time, then the sprint is to no avail.

Overtaking the tail-end gives the sprinter a point, passing half the pack gives him two points, and lapping the entire outfit is worth five points. The team that has the most points at the end of the 21 days wins.

SPLIT PRIZE MONEY

There is a grand award of $1000 for first place, $250 for second and so on, and there are two cash prizes nightly for the most points gained from 7:30 to 9:30 and from 9:30 to 12.

The skaters, however, usually form cliques and share one another's prize-winnings. These cliques add to the interest and fury of the race. The boy of Team A, for instance, will start a sprint for a point, and his pals, B and C, will by use of their shoulders and hips and wide-striding legs, try to block out his chief opponents, D and E.

B and C will slow down the pace of the pursuers so that A is more able to overtake the pack. Then when he nears the goal his two pals will drop back to enable him to scoot in front of them. However, the opposition drops back also and tries to block him out.

This causes numerous spills, fist-fights (hair-pullings in the case of the girls) and now and then painful injuries. Nearly all of the boys and girls are burned and scraped on the legs and arms and shoulders from skidding along the wooden floor.

INJURIES FREQUENT

Once in a while someone is badly injured—broken arm, or leg, or a gashed head.

Honey Thomas, dainty little favorite of derby fans, has had two collarbones broken; Tiny McDowell, black-eyed Irish lass, skated half

Want a razzamatazz recipe for something that'll make your head whirl?...

Well, take equal parts of the speed of the 100-yard dash, the fury of a Dempsey fight, the rough and tumble hokum of razzing, the hysteria of collegiate football, the bitter competition of a dog fight—shake well, take a large gulp and your head'll go round and round, and round at....

CAPT. WHITNEY, DUFFY, PIPER ALSO QUALIFY

Toast of the town today was young Wendell Todrow, a Santa Ana high school junior, who broke the Southern California Class B high jump record at Glendale Saturday during preliminaries for the all-Southern prep track meet at Woodrow Wilson, Long Beach, next Saturday.

One of the most consistent leapers in Saint history, Todrow cleared 6 feet, 1½ inches (by actual measurement) and wiped out the mark of Manual Arts' Frampton (5:11) that had stood since 1934.

Tedrow was one of seven possible Santa Ana qualifiers.

Captain Herschel Whitney, fourth in the "A" mile, was clocked in 4 min. 42.8 sec. by C.L.F. clockers and is sure to be admitted to the finals on the basis of his time, which was better than the winner made at the Riverside divisional tryouts.

Wayne Piper and Jerome Duffy, Class B sprinters, tied for third in the 220 in the C.L.F. race of 22.5, a Saint Class B record. They also are sure to run at Long Beach, as is Jack Clark, Class C low hurdler.

Laurence Dresser tied for third in the "B" vault at 11 feet and probably will be admitted to the finals. Byron Bates, fifth in the 660, also may qualify on the basis of his time.

MORRIS SETS RECORD IN 'B' FURLONG

Five Orange county athletes—Streech and Danielson of Orange, Carter of Huntington Beach, LeClair of Garden Grove and Scoville of Newport Harbor—qualified for the Southern California meet in trials at Riverside, but a Huntington Beach "B" sprinter, Ed Morris, stole most of the thunder.

Morris set an all-Southern "B" record of 21.8 seconds in the 220 after winning the 100 in 10 flat.

Carter of the same school high-jumped 6:14 in Class A. LeClair won the shot at 47.2. Orange's relay team placed second. Streech was third in the 220, Danielson third in the mile, Scoville third in the pole vault.

PING PONG TOURNAMENT SCHEDULED AT 'Y'

Entry blanks for the Santa Ana ping pong tournament to be held at the Y. M. C. A. May 22 are now ready. R. Carson Smith, chairman of the committee on arrangements, announced today. Blanks may be had from Smith at his office, 312 North Main street, or at the "Y" building.

The tournament will be run in two divisions, Class A for persons under 16 and Class B for persons 16 and over. Both men and women may enter. All play will be in singles. The tournament is open to all residents of Santa Ana. Later it is planned to conduct a tournament to all Orange county. Entries close May 19.

FOREST RANGER ISSUES PLEA ON REPORTING FIRE

When placing a telephone call to the state forestry fire department, in Orange or one of its branches, always be sure to state plainly the name of the street on which the fire is located, and the location up on such street, with relation to some well-known cross-street. That may save a lot of time and property.

This was the plea today of State Ranger Joe Scherman, of Orange, head of the state fire fighting forces in this county, following an experience yesterday in which his fire truck was forced to waste about four minutes time, as a result of false directions.

It was only an inconsequential blaze that burned three palm trees upon a public street, Cerritos street, near Anaheim, and did some damage to a telephone line, but those four lost minutes might have been vitally important had it been a residential fire, Scherman said.

The call came first to the Anaheim fire department and was relayed to the state ranger's headquarters in Orange, where the name of the street was given as Carroll. It should have been given as Clara, which is the official name of the street, although it appears as Cerritos street on the map, and is commonly known thus.

The state fire truck made its run to Carroll street, near Fullerton, then found its error, and doubled back to Cerritos, or Clara, where it halted the blaze.

Calls for rural territory should be placed directly to the state forestry or state fire department in Orange, a telephone number being unnecessary, said Scherman. Not only should the name of the street be clearly and carefully stated but because there are numerous small roads of the same name at various localities, the information should include location of the fire, with respect to a well-known cross-street. "Such as Miller road, a half-mile south of Lincoln boulevard," said Scherman.

MUST DOGS LEAVE TOWN?

On my desk lies a thick sheaf of multigraphed pages. The advance blast of a crusade which, according to its promoters, will sweep the nation during the next year or so. (My aid is asked, and I have written refusing to have anything to do with it.) Briefly, this is the idea:

PET TALKS

By MRS. T. J. NEAL

It is said that owls, if taken from the nest when very young, make fine pets. This is a different idea than ancient Egyptians had. Owls in those days, were thought to be something dreadful. If a king wanted to dispose of a servant or minister he would send him an owl, which was a command to commit suicide.

The normal heart beat of a canary is 1,000 times per minute. They have the highest normal temperature of any living creature. This is one reason why caged canaries should never be covered at night.

Wild dogs and wolves do not bark—they howl. It is said that barking is an accomplishment taught dogs by association with man. The dog, listening to his master's shouts to go after game, imitated these, and in time developed the bark.

Cats have a natural dislike to being handled by strangers. This dislike is intensified when the cat is sick. For this reason, it is best to nurse a cat at home, except for surgical cases that are better handled in the small animal hospitals.

Take your dog for a swim but, if its in the ocean, take along fresh water. A dog is tempted to drink the sea water which increases his thirst and is harmful to his stomach.

The Chihuahua is the smallest breed of dog; the Beagle, the best breeding dog for rabbits; the St. Bernard, the heaviest; the Irish Wolfhound, the largest. But the best dog is your own, whatever breed that happens to be.

REGISTER-RKO URGES PROMPT ACTION TODAY

Tuesday is the deadline for filing of applications in The Register-RKO-Walker theater search for the lucky person who will receive a screen test in Hollywood in the near future!

This was the announcement today of R. M. Conklin, circulation manager of The Register, and Vic Walker, theater manager, who explained that officials would determine Tuesday whether there would be a third chance for auditions.

Another Audition
The second auditions will be conducted at Walker's on the stage this Wednesday, and if a sufficient number of applications are received to warrant an extension of the original plan, another audition will be conducted the evening of May 13.

Coincident with this announcement, Harold Simpson, promotion man for Walker's, told of Anne Shirley's rise to fame. He made the statement in citing the opportunity for anyone in Santa Ana or Orange county to gain the same heights in screenland.

Won Similar Contest
"Anne Shirley," he explained, "is one of RKO's rising young stars. She was the winner of a screen test such as now is being conducted in Santa Ana in conjunction with the International Screen Scout Magazine."

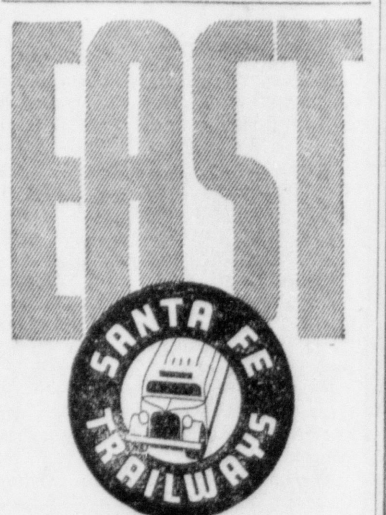

"Wednesday night, David Smith, the well-known director again will take aspiring young persons of this area, give them parts to read and determine who will enter the finals. So, tell everyone to fill out the application blank and submit it at Walker's immediately."

34 Autoists Get Traffic Tickets On Varied Counts

In connection with Santa Ana's traffic safety campaign, city police ticketed 15 speeders during the week end, records show. Others ticketed included two allegedly drunk drivers; two reckless drivers; two boulevard stop jumpers; 11 illegal parkers; a motorist who failed to have proper address on his operator's license, and one who failed to have his operator's license with him.

For speeding, City Judge J. G. Mitchell, Saturday, fined Gertrude Irwin, Palmdale; Helen B. Lockhart, and Virginia Bigelow, Route 1, Santa Ana, $6 each. Y. Bianco, El Modena, went to jail for 75 days in lieu of paying a $150 fine. Frederick Calhoun, Santa Ana, and William E. Otis, Santa Ana, were fined $2 each for boulevard stop jumping.

Charles Dickens' first book was "Sketches by Boz," and was published before his marriage in 1836. A few days before that event, announcement was made of the publication of the first part of the "Pickwick Papers."

Santa Anan Gets Thrill Over Film

Gordon Beisel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Neil Beisel, 209 West Cubbon street, who is stationed at Liberty, Texas, as technician and roentgenologist to Mercy hospital there, wrote the following amusing letter home the other day:

"Here in southeastern Texas, the towns are small and obscure. Each town has a small movie house, showing pictures two and three months behind schedule, and rarely, if ever, boasting a newsreel. Yesterday, my brother Keith and I went to Dayton, a nearby town, to see a show."

Sees Old Friend

Imagine my surprise to see a newsreel! In the newsreel there was a section concerning high voltage experiments in the million volt laboratory of Cal Tech. I told Keith that George Holmes Jr. was a student there, and that we ought to see him in the student crowd on the balcony in the picture. But the pleasure that came when we saw George by himself in the reel, holding a high frequency tube as the end of an arc between him and a huge high frequency coil was enough to make me remain and see the newsreel twice. George and I write to each other regularly, keeping going a friendship that began in grammar school, fought through junior high and high school and continued through junior college all in Santa Ana. He majored in physical sciences, and I in biological sciences.

Senior Appointment

"At the present time George is completing his degree at Cal Tech, while I am stationed here in Liberty where I have been granted senior appointment as roentgenologist at Mercy hospital. I return to college in the fall, entering Tulane university in Louisiana. While 2100 miles from home, I have kept in contact with home and the old gang through George. It was indeed a surprise to find my best friend before me after a year, and in an obscure movie house in a Texas hamlet."

RAFT STARTED FROM SCRATCH!

George is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George B. Holmes, 1238 South Ross street.

The recall in American politics was first used during the time of the Continental Congress. Pennsylvanians delegates refused to sign the Declaration of Independence, were recalled, and other delegates were sent in their places.

INCREASE IN BEAN ACREAGE IS REPORTED

With lima bean planting now being rushed, W. M. Cory, assistant Orange county farm advisor, indicated a considerable increase in acreage.

Cory expressed his belief that there would be at least 2000 more acres devoted to lima beans this year, than in the previous year.

Indications for a bumper crop are favorable because of the exceptional rainfall this winter.

Harvest In September

Few of these beans are marketed green. Almost the entire crop is thrashed and sold through the California Lima Bean association and independent concerns.

According to figures released by the Agricultural commissioners of rice there were 37,385 acres of lima beans last year compared to the 27,796 acres in 1935. The principal other bean crop is black-eyed.

The yield of the combined bean production in Orange county last year was over $2,500,000.

Bean harvest is in September when thrashing machines move in to the fields and prepare the crops for marketing. Planting has not been delayed by rains.

wax and chemicals to find a lasting material for her work. The discovery came about almost by accident and the formula has been kept a secret. The work was done with an orange wood stick much of the time under a magnifying glass.

Miss White also discovered a process of coloring the wax which gives a living texture to the flesh of her models. Children or mothers and children were shown in yesterday's exhibition, many of the same works of art having been shown at the Chicago World's Fair where high honors were accorded
it. While guests viewed the artist's work, Mrs. White and Mrs.
Stimpie, chatting with them revealed many interesting things about the late Miss White's life and work.

When she was but a child the artist began her life work with plastic clay and her interest in art was intensified by many visits to art galleries with her mother and sister, Mrs. Stimpie herself a talented writer, was awarded a prize by the New York Sun for a drawing when she was 15 years of age, while Mrs. White was well known in the east for her work in black and white, using charcoal as a medium. The artist's father was an inventor of note and was inventor of the Miehle press.

When planning to make a wax miniature of a child, Miss White lived with her young subject in the home for several weeks making sketches of characteristic poses. One plaque shows a lady in a white dress, with a white rabbit, the pink roses in the blanket showing great detail of the embroidery.

The hair of one of the child models, a mass of tumbled curls, was done with such vividness that the texture would seem not to be of wax but of silken threads.
Wind blown skirts, tiny fingers resting on the pages of books, a boy's look of love at his nearby dog, all show life and movement which has been found by qualified critics to be remarkable indeed.

Musical Program
Miss Adelaide Proctor, pianist, and Ben Hager, vocal soloist, provided a delightful musical program yesterday, playing and singing at intervals during the afternoon. The numbers included a vocal solo by Mr. Hager, "Aspiration," words of which are by Dr.
Florence Brown, and music by Miss Proctor. Mr. Hager also sang
"Ah that We Two Were Maying" (Nevin).

For the tea interval guests were invited to the dining room, where a lace spread table was lighted by white tapers casting a soft glow on a lovely bouquet of delphiniums, daisies and other flowers in blue and yellow. All decorative details were in pastel tints. Flowers used in decorating included bouquets sent in by Miss Lella Watson, Mrs. Frank Wheeler and Fred Certeval.

Assisting in serving were Miss Lucille Holman, Miss Velma Holman, Miss Agnes Andrews, Mrs. T.
E. Davis and Mrs. William Fritcher.

ORANGE, May 10.—With 1300 present at the morning service and visitors from many towns in California as well as other states present, the home coming of members of the confirmation classes of St. John's church since 1883 marked the first event of the kind since the organization of the church 55 years ago. The home coming was planned last year by the pastor, the Rev. A. C. Bode.

Happy reunions of old friends many of whom had not seen each other for a number of years were pleasant features of the day. A buffet supper was served by members of the Martha society in the dining room, from attractively decorated tables. Mrs. Ernest Knaak is president of the society.

Pictures of confirmation classes arranged by Henry Bandick on a long table in Walker Memorial hall, where afternoon and evening events took place, proved of great interest to members of the classes.

Three generations of those who had been confirmed in the church were represented by two families, Herman Struck, his son, Albert Struck and grandson Arthur Struck, and Mrs. George Dierker, her daughter, Mrs. Merle Talmadge and her grandson, Willis Talmadge.

Science Church Is Opened At Laguna Beach

LAGUNA BEACH, May 10.—With morning and afternoon services that were largely attended, the new First Church of Christ Scientist was formally opened yesterday. The edifice, at the corner of Legion and Gleneyre streets, occupies a commanding site, and exclusive of land, cost over $15,000.00 to erect.

Heretofore, meetings of the congregation have been held in the Woman's Club building; but steady growth in membership necessitated building of the new church, which seats 200 people, with additional reserve seating capacity for 50 more, as needed. Aubrey St. Clair, Laguna Beach architect, prepared the plans for the church; provisions are made for literature distribution center, reading room, and director's meeting chamber.

'Hobo Hike' Is Held By Group

ORANGE, May 10.—Young people of the high school department of the Presbyterian church held a "hobo hike", Friday night, the object to gather up discarded articles which could be used by the local welfare store. Gathering at the church, they divided into groups and visited various homes, where the articles were given them. The prize for obtaining the most and best articles was given to the group led by David Welsh. The collection will be turned over to the welfare store today.

On their return the group enjoyed a wiener bake in the patio of the church, around the open outdoor fireplace. Adult advisors present included Dr. and Mrs. R. B. McAuley, Mr. and Mrs. Ensley Campbell, Mrs. Vern O. Estes and Miss Agnes Adams.

Seek Parking Meters For Laguna Business Area

C. OF C. TO CIRCULATE PETITIONS

LAGUNA BEACH, May 10.—Sponsored by the local chamber of commerce, petitions are to be circulated asking for installation of parking meter devices in the downtown area of Laguna Beach.

At a recent meeting of the city council, two competitive but similar devices were demonstrated by factory representatives, following which the chamber of commerce requested the city council to adopt such devices, as tending to lessen parking congestion downtown, which situation has grown somewhat acute.

Last week, the council decided to seek some expression of opinion from the public, favorable or otherwise, and the circulating of the petitions will commence this week. Opinion is divided concerning the meter idea, and the action of city council follows a similar seeking of opinion in the proposed bathing suit ordinance, which will be up again, one week from Wednesday.

MYSTERY TRAIL LEADS TO GRAVE

LOS ANGELES, May 10.—(UP)—The trail of the reopened, 15-year-old mystery of who murdered William Desmond Taylor, noted film director, today led to another grave, that of Henry Peavey, Negro valet to Taylor, from whom the district attorney's office had hoped for further light in its attempt to solve the crime.

Peavey, who rushed screaming from his master's home the morning of February 2, 1922, when he found Taylor's body on the floor as he came to work, had been reported living in Sacramento, Deputy District Attorney Eugene B. Williams, in charge of the probe, was preparing to send investigators to the state capital to interrogate the valet, when word came from there that Peavey had died in 1925.

The case was reopened as the result of a legal action between Mrs. Charlotte Shelby, mother of Mary Miles Minter, and her other daughter, Mrs. Margaret Fillmore. In making a deposition in the suit, in which she demands from her mother payment for services rendered, Mrs. Fillmore said she had "protected" her mother at the time of the killing of Taylor.

Apartment, Two Homes Will Be Built Here Soon

Two homes in an apartment house will be constructed at once at a cost of $28,000, as result of issuance of necessary permits by Building Inspector H. O. Rasmussen Saturday.

A frame apartment house of 20 rooms, four units, valued at $14,000, will be constructed by Jasper Farney, owner and builder, at 1121 French street.

An $11,000 frame and stucco, seven-room home, will be constructed by Cliff May, West Los Angeles contractor, for William C. Strange, Jr., at 1715 West 27th street, and a five-room frame residence, with garage, will be built at 1212 North Olive, by Roy Russell for H. C. Head, at cost of $8,000.

TRAY, CUSTOMER GONE

A man who forgot to leave the tray and glasses he used while tending at Scottie's Malt shop on North Main early yesterday morning was sought today by city police. Employees of the eating place said the man's license number was 2-Y-202. That license is registered to Calvin Bernberger of the U.S.S. Utah, Long Beach, police learned.

THIS CURIOUS WORLD By William Ferguson

GOAT'S MILK ALWAYS IS FREE OF TUBERCULOSIS GERMS.

A BARREL OF CRUDE PETROLEUM YIELDS ABOUT TWICE AS MANY GALLONS OF GASOLINE TODAY AS IT DID FIFTEEN YEARS AGO.

VENUS travels an orbit that lies inside that of the earth. Therefore, when she is nearest us, she is directly in line with the sun, and we can see only her dark side. Mars travels an orbit that lies outside our own, and we look away from the sun to see it at its nearest approach, and we see its full lighted face.

SLANDER SUIT OF RHEBA CALLED OFF

LOS ANGELES, May 10.—(UP)—Mrs. Rheba Crawford Spilivalo's $1,080,000 slander suit against Almee Semple McPherson, head of Angelus temple, was taken off calendar today. It was announced that a settlement between the two had been reached, but terms were not stated.

By almost simultaneous requests of attorneys for both the plaintiff and the defendant, the legal row between the temple pastor and her former assistant, which had been expected to generate startling fireworks in the trial, was wiped from the calendar indefinitely.

The $1,080,000 suit was the heaviest ever filed against Mrs. McPherson, a veteran of legal battles.

Mrs. Spilivalo, once known as the Angel of Broadway, listed in her cause for damages blistering quotations from what she said were statements made about her by the temple pastor.

Jail Richard Dix On Drunk Charge

LOS ANGELES, May 10.—(UP)—Richard Dix, arrested on an intoxication charge in Hollywood, posted $20 bail today and was released from city jail, where he spent the night.

The screen star was taken in custody by radio patrolmen, who reported Dix at first showed a desire to fight and then broke into tears as he exclaimed, "You can't do this to me."

Booked at Lincoln Heights jail, Dix gave his age as 43 and submitted peacefully to his incarceration for the remaining hours of the night.

Early today he posted $20 bail and promised to appear in night court to answer to the intoxication charge.

KEN Murray SAYS:

HOLLYWOOD, May 10.—The world's nations have lately been shipping so much gold to the U. S., there is hardly room on the boats for stowaways. Right now we have enough of the precious metal to fill the teeth of our entire population, including the rhinoceroses.

About all England's got left are the King's and Queen's crowns, which are second-hand, anyway. The Bank of France is so depleted, you could use its gold vault for a squash racquets court. Russia is sending it over here like bars of soap. And as fast as Uncle Sam gets it, he whisks it out to Kentucky to put in our fortified hole in the ground.

But after we gobble up all those gold money bars, wouldn't it be an awful joke if the other nations voted to go back to clamshells for currency?

HULL REFUSES TO BE NOBEL CANDIDATE

WASHINGTON, May 10.—(UP)—Secretary of State Cordell Hull today announced that he had eliminated his name from consideration in connection with the award of the Nobel peace prize.

He indicated he had taken this action at the time that he seconded the nomination of President Roosevelt to receive the peace award for 1936.

The Cuban government as well as a number of other Latin-American governments, groups and individuals had suggested the President's name for the award, Hull said.

His elimination of his own name from consideration for the prize was prompted by the urgings of some of his friends that Hull receive the Nobel award in recognition of his outstanding work in behalf of world peace.

RESERVE COMPANY CHARGES DROPPED

LOS ANGELES, May 10.—(UP)—Criminal charges against five of the nine former officials of the California Reserve company were dismissed today in Judge Raglan Tuttle's court. The court ruled, however, that the remainder of the defendants must present their cases.

Those against whom charges still stand are: George G. Gregory, president of the company and brother-in-law of District Attorney Byron Fitts; S. M. Swordling; E. R. Lanneau and L. R. Jacobson.

Six charges of conspiracy to commit forgery remain against the four defendants.

HARRY NEW, FORMER P. O. HEAD PASSES

BALTIMORE, Md., May 10.—(UP)—Harry S. New, 78, Postmaster General under Presidents Harding and Coolidge and former U. S. senator from Indiana, died of pneumonia last night in Johns Hopkins hospital.

He had been in the hospital two weeks. Mrs. New and Col. and Mrs. Parker Hitt, family friends, were in the hospital when he died.

ARSENIC-CHILL DAMAGE SUIT OPENS IN COURT

A $16,577.64 damage suit brought by W. H. Booth and Company, producing merchants, against S. Murata, Japanese chili grower, who allegedly sprayed so much arsenic upon peppers sold to Booth that federal inspectors seized the product after it had been manufactured into chili powder, was being heard by a jury in Superior Judge G. K. Scovel's court today.

It is the first case to come before the new jury panel.

Booth contracted for 60 tons of dried chili peppers from Murata in March, 1935, the complaint states. Part of the damage claim is based upon failure of Murata to deliver all the chilis contracted, and part on losses sustained through seizure of the chili powder.

Murata delivered 97,094 pounds and failed to deliver 22,066 pounds, it is claimed. Of the 97,094 pounds Booth made 65,933 pounds into chili powder at a manufacturing cost of five cents per pound, in addition to the 61-2 cents per pound paid for the entire lot; 32,061 pounds were not made into chili powder.

Claims Analyzed

Then federal pure-food inspectors seized the chili powder, as having more arsenic than allowed by legal tolerance. The amount of arsenic ranged from 1-10 to 1-3 grain per pound. Booth charges. The remainder of the peppers delivered were sent back to Murata for another washing, but still had more than the tolerance allowance of arsenic, so represented a loss, Booth claims.

The damage claim includes $3,251.65 for cost of making into chili powder, $3,250 paid to Murata for the chilis, $6,500 in loss of manufacturing profits, $1,074.99 special costs in connection with the seizure, making a total of $14,175.64. Another $2,402.08 paid for another lot of 1935 peppers, and $253.92 loss of manufacturing profit, is sought by Booth. He had purchased this lot when the first lot of chili powder was seized, he claims.

Woman Overcome As She Converses Over Telephone

While talking by telephone to her attorney, Franklin G. West, yesterday afternoon, Mrs. Bessie Doyle, 2126 North Ross, slumped to the floor and became unconscious, city police learned upon investigation.

Noticing the weakness of Mrs. Doyle's voice, Attorney West immediately went to the Doyle home and rang the door bell but was unable to get a response. Calling Detective Lieutenant Charles W. Wolford, an investigation was made and Wolford was forced to crawl into the Doyle home through an unlocked window, to reach Mrs. Doyle's side.

With Mrs. Alma Carlson and Mrs. D. A. Beeman, 2120 North Ross, Officer Wolford gave first aid and sent Mrs. Doyle to St. Joseph hospital. She was reported slightly improved today. It was believed Mrs. Doyle took too much of a medicine she was advised to use following a recent illness.

50 PERSONS HURT IN FRENCH RIOTS

PARIS, May 10.—(UP)—The 525th anniversary of Joan of Arc's birth was celebrated yesterday in many cities—in Paris under the eyes of thousands of armed mobile guardsmen and in Toulouse with disorders that caused injuries to 50 persons.

Authorities here forbade the usual Catholic processions between the two statues to Joan of Arc, because they held that nationalists gave such parades political significance.

The disorders at Toulouse started when manifestants, after honoring Joan, began to sing the Marseillaise and to give the fascist salute. Bystanders retorted with the Internationale and the Communist salute and fighting started.

GRAF ZEPPELIN'S FLIGHT POSTPONED

BERLIN, May 10.—(UP)—All scheduled flights to South America of the dirigible, Graf Zeppelin, were suspended today by Gen. Hermann Wilhelm Goering, German air minister, pending a report from the German commission en route to the United States to investigate the Hindenburg disaster.

The next trip from Friedrichshafen to Rio de Janeiro had been scheduled for Tuesday, but the Essen National-Zeitung, Goering's official newspaper indicated that the airship might be held over until it could be reconstructed for helium gas.

Straw Hats Go In As Felts Are Scorned

Straw Hat Day, sponsored in Santa Ana by the Retail Division of the chamber of commerce as a part of National Straw Hat Week, was observed by scores of Santa Anans who wore their old felt hats down town this morning, only to change them for the modish straws being displayed in the windows of all men's furnishing stores in the city.

New straw hats being displayed this year also replaced many of last season's "hay chapeau" after their wearers took a comparative look and murmured to the old straw, as it dropped into the trash can, "not so hot as I thought."

The new straws are constructed to conform to head contours and are lighter and cooler than ever before. They also set a new high note for style.

DRIVER IN FATAL ACCIDENT GUILTY

Florentino Murrieta today pleaded guilty to a charge of negligent homicide, in connection with a traffic accident on East First street, Santa Ana, when his car struck and killed an elderly pedestrian, Marie Sapphire Woods.

He applied to Superior Judge G. K. Scovel for probation, and hearing was set for May 14.

Following filing of the plea through his attorney, N. D. Meyer, the court granted a motion by Deputy District Attorney Clarence Sprague to dismiss a second charge of failure to render aid. Sprague explained that his motion to dismiss was based upon the fact that both charges were founded on one and the same transaction.

Mrs. Spizzy Is Re-elected As Music Chairman

Mrs. Mabel Spizzy, music supervisor in the county schools, was re-elected music chairman of California Business and Professional Women's club during a three-day state convention which closed Sunday evening in Del Monte.

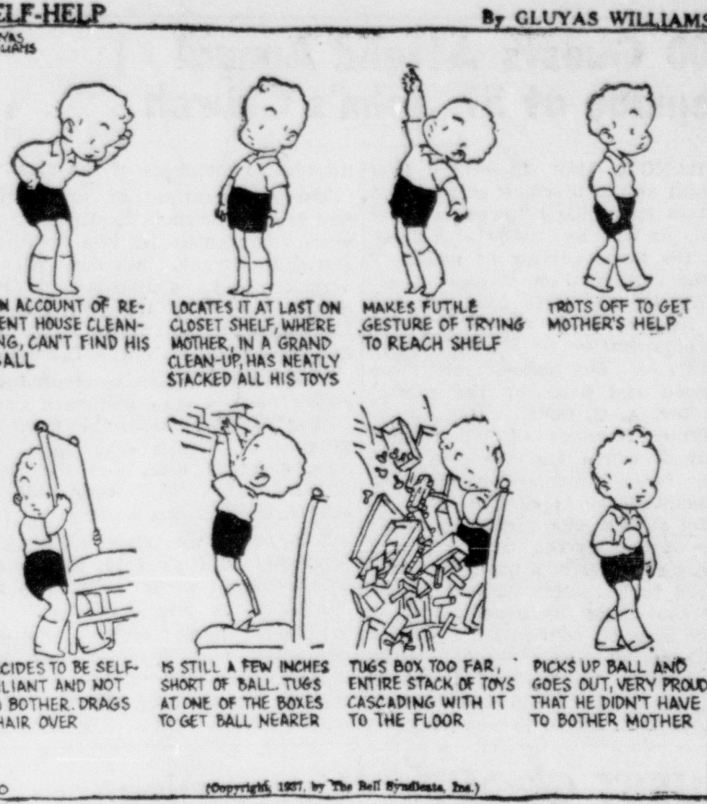

Mrs. Laura McNaught, newly-installed president of Santa Ana B. and P. W. and Miss Dorothy Decker of this city, recording secretary of Southern District Federation B. and P. W., attended the weekend convocation with Mrs. Spizzy. Mrs. Spizzy was in charge of all music for convention programs.

Dana Williams, retiring Southern District president, was elected to the vice-presidency of the state Federation. Under direction of Florence Fitzgerald of San Diego, retiring president of Southern District organization, a special program feature was presented during a circus breakfast event of the convention.

The 1937 state convention will be held in Santa Barbara, it was reported.

OBJECTS TO CELL

Amado Lopez, 35, of Orange, charged with creating a disturbance at Fourth and Garfield, by asserting fighting, carried his anger into county jail last night, officials reported. Booked on drunk charge, Lopez objected to his apprehension most of the night, attendants and jail inmates who were disturbed, said.

LIGHTNER-WALES WEDDING RITES ARE SOLEMNIZED

FULLERTON, May 10.—The marriage of Miss Glee Anna Lightner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Lee Waters of 322 East Wilshire avenue, to Elmer Kenneth Wales, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Burton Wales, also of Fullerton, was solemnized Saturday at 12:30 p. m. at the Anaheim St. Michael's Episcopal church.

The old good luck adage of "something old and something new, something borrowed and something blue" was carried out by the bride who wore the wedding gown worn 29 years ago by Mrs. Wales, mother of the bridegroom. The finger-ring-length veil caught to the bride's hair by a veil of orange blossoms was loaned by Mrs. Ruth Harrison of Santa Ana. The bride carried a hand-made lace handkerchief, the gift of the matron of honor, Mrs. Alan C. Whitefield of Pasadena, and a sapphire ring, a gift from the bridegroom.

Alan C. Whitefield, Pasadena, attended Mr. Wales as best man. Robert Allan and Paul Fallert served as ushers.

Preceding the wedding Mason Henry of Anaheim presided at the organ, playing "Because" and "I Love You Truly."

The Rev. E. Howard Dow, vicar of the Anaheim Episcopal church, read the marriage rites.

The bride, who is employed at the county courthouse, is a graduate of Fullerton Union High school and District Junior college. The groom, who is manager of the Richfield station at Union and Spadra road, is also a graduate of both Fullerton institutions. The couple will reside at 117 East Union avenue.

SOCIAL SECURITY CHANGES STUDIED

WASHINGTON, May 10.—The Social Security board and the senate finance committee today announced creation of an advisory council to study proposed drastic revisions of the Social Security act.

The council will consider eight suggested changes, including abandonment of the $47,000,000,000 (b) reserve fund which has been attacked by Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg, R., Mich.; extending old-age benefits to workers not now covered, possible decrease in payroll taxes in later years from the schedule as it now stands, and increasing monthly benefits during the early years of the program.

The special council, comprising six representatives of employees, six of employers, and 12 of the public, was named today by Sen. Pat Harrison, D., Miss., chairman of the senate finance committee and Arthur J. Altmeyer, chairman of the Social Security board.

The advisory council, which will co-operate with the Social Security board in the study of the proposed changes, is composed of business and labor leaders and economic authorities.

CROWD CHEERS ROYAL COUPLE

LONDON, May 10.—(UP)—King George and Queen Elizabeth paid a surprise visit to Westminster Abbey today in the full dress rehearsal of Wednesday's coronation, and were almost mobbed by a cheering throng outside the Abbey.

Police were caught unaware because their majesties gave them no notice of their intentions. The crowds broke through the inadequate cordons, swarming around the royal automobile for several minutes before they were pushed back.

After giving a private luncheon at Buckingham palace, attended by Queen Mary, the Duke and Duchess of Gloucester, the Duke and Duchess of Kent and Prince Nicholas of Greece, the king and queen motored to the Abbey.

The queen was dressed in dove grey. The king wore a derby hat. They joined in the rehearsal of the procession from the annex to the altar, which so far has proved a difficult part of the ceremony because of the inability of the peers to avoid stumbling on their robes when they walk backwards. The full ceremony was rehearsed but the king and queen participated only in part of it.

Representatives of an empire that covers one-fourth the world, envoys from 53 world nations, tourists from nearly as many and the visitors from the British provinces joined Londoners in lending their own color to an occasion which makes plain as nothing else does that kings may come and go, but the kingdom goes on forever.

ANAHEIM MAN IS ATTACKED, ROBBED

Sheriff's officers today were investigating reports of a robbery, grand theft and two petty thefts of the week end.

Norbert DeCock, Center street at Lincoln, Anaheim, told Officers James Musick and G. F. McKelvey that he was struck on the head and knocked unconscious by an unknown assailant last night near his home and robbed of $8 in cash.

G. W. Lewellen, living at the end of N. Batavia street, Orange, Route 3, Anaheim, told Officers Ives Brown and Claude Potter, thieves have been stealing some of his cattle pastured on a ranch in Santa Ana canyon. R. C. Young, Lincoln avenue at Brookhurst, near Anaheim, told officers yesterday thieves stole 60 Rhode Island red hens Saturday night. Ten chickens were stolen from Ninth and Chapman streets, Garden Grove, last night, L. A. Smith, owner, told officers.

STORIES IN STAMPS

ROYAL RIFT THREATENS THRONE

BY I. S. KLEIN

EVER since King Carol of Rumania ascended the throne in 1930, he was the butt of violent opposition by the Iron Guard, a Fascist organization which objected to the king's persistent love affair with Mme. Magda Lupescu, a Jewess. It was for love of this ravishing red-head that, in 1926, Carol renounced his right of succession to the throne, and left the way open for his son by his legal wife, the former Princess Helen of Greece, to become king.

Yet, faced by a similar situation involving his brother Nicholas, who refused to renounce his romance with a commoner, Carol turned the other way. He ousted Nicholas from the royal family, and as a result had to face another storm of protest by the Iron Guard. The Magda Lupescu affair became bolder in its opposition to the king, and at one time it was feared that Carol's hold on the throne had weakened. But Nicholas came to his rescue with assurance that he had no part in the action of the Iron Guard.

The incident again recalls the fiery career of King Carol of Rumania, whose portrait appears on several stamps of that country. One is shown here.

PLACENTIA, May 10.—Twenty-three years of lecturing and appearing before the public have continued to impress on him that the most important thing in life is the proper care and training of young people. Dr. Charles E. Barker, Rotary lecturer said at a special community meeting at the Placentia school auditorium last night. He was presented by the Rotary club of Placentia. A. P. Patten, superintendent of schools, introduced him. Miss Martha Staveley who is an instructor in the Valencia High school, played organ numbers. Alfred and Arthur Castello played a saxophone and clarinet duet; Jean Charlton played a piano solo. Ed Eisenacher was introduced as the new club president.

CAST OF CHARACTERS
JOAN HARRIS, heroine, secretary to John Hendry.
JOHN HENDRY, mining investment head.
BOB ANDREWS, Hendry's junior partner and Joan's fiance.
SYBIL HENDRY, socialite, John Hendry's niece and Joan's rival in love.
PHILIP HENDRY, Sybil's brother.
DOROTHY STARK, Joan's childhood friend.
CHARLES NORTON, California mining promoter.

Yesterday, Joan is left alone in the office with Charles Norton who recognizes her as having once lived in California. Trembling, Joan denies this.

CHAPTER XVII

EVENTUALLY, Joan met Dorothy for lunch, though it was long after one o'clock, and Dorothy had been waiting half an hour.

"I had the most awful time getting here!" she cried breathlessly. "That Norton man—Mr. Hendry's friend from California—kept me, pretending he had some work. . . . He is the most horrible person!"

"Why didn't you walk out on him?"

"I did, finally. However," she reported more cheerfully, "I have the afternoon off. Mr. Hendry told me to go shopping."

Dorothy smiled. "Is he an understanding man?"

Joan did not think of Norton again that afternoon; they were both too absorbed in the joy of buying in sheer extravagance. With three hundred dollars to spend—one hundred on lingerie alone, if she wanted to—Joan felt as if she owned the world.

It was not until late that night, after Joan had tried on the last silky, slithering nightie, that Dorothy remarked, wickedly:

"You are the prettiest thing, Joan. . . . I don't wonder that old Norton tried to make up to you—Look out! You've dropped that lovely nightie on the floor!"

She looked up quickly, wondering what had startled Joan so. "What's the matter?" she asked lightly.

Joan rubbed a hand over her forehead. "I'm tired, I guess. And I'd forgotten all about Norton."

Dorothy laughed. "Surely you're not afraid of him, are you?"

"I think I am."

"You goose! With Bob and Mr. Hendry in the same office?"

"It's not that. He's a link—to California. I can't be sure whether he knows or not."

"Fiddlesticks!" Dorothy exclaimed lightly. "Don't worry about it." But her eyes clouded, and for a moment she sat on the bed quietly turning the matter over in her mind.

"JOAN," she said finally, "do you mind if I ask you about it?"

Joan looked up in mild surprise. "About my father, you mean?"

"Yes."

"I don't mind, Dorothy. What is it?"

"Was he guilty?" She asked it timidly, knowing how painful the question might be.

Joan, however, did not flinch. Her voice, when she replied, was sad, but still quiet. She had answered the question so many times, in her own heart as well as to other people.

"He never killed a man, Dorothy," she said simply. "I know it means nothing for me to say that. He said it so often—and my mother said it. But nobody believed them. I know that he was innocent, just as you would have known it of your father, just as I know now that Bob could never do anything like that."

"The evidence was all circumstantial, of course."

Joan nodded. "Diabolically so. I guess even the jury couldn't believe otherwise. The murder was so—so cold-blooded. I remember reading about it in the papers. Dad wouldn't have me at the trial, and mother tried to keep the newspapers from me. But I saw them, of course. And when I read the awful accusations against father, I would forget for a moment who he was, and I would shudder with hatred, too."

ABSENTLY she traced the outline of the lace in the nightgown she held in her lap. "Father and this Mr. Jordan," she went on, "were such close friends. He was as devoted to him as I am to Mr. Hendry. Or rather, as Bob is to Mr. Hendry. Father was young, and Mr. Jordan, as his employer, gave him unlimited opportunity. He trusted him with every dollar that passed through the company, and father would have died himself before betraying his confidence. He could never have done—that what they said."

"He could never have quarreled with him?"

Joan shook her head. "I don't think he ever did. But if there was some little disagreement that, that wouldn't prove he—he?"

"Shot him?"

Tears sprung into Joan's eyes. "Shot him," she whispered, "in the back—Oh, Dorothy, can't you believe my father never did that? Can't anybody believe it?"

Joan jumped to her feet, crying a little hysterically.

There were tears in Dorothy's eyes, too, as she got up and put her arms about Joan's shoulders.

"I do believe it, Joan, dear. I can't tell you why I do, but I believe in your father just as I believe in you. We can't make a jury believe, but if we know ourselves, don't you suppose between us, we could find out something?"

They sat down on the bed together. Hopelessly, Joan shook her head.

"How could we, Dorothy?" she cried despairingly. "How could we do it, without money, now, when nobody else could—ten years ago?"

Dorothy sighed. "I don't know. Somehow it just seems to me that if you believe in someone so truly—so positively—you must be able to impress your certainty upon others."

"My mother believed in him that way."

"Of course. But your mother was probably so terrified, so bewildered at the time, that her strength deserted her."

Joan nodded. "Mother was ill, I remember. That was another circumstance."

"How?"

"It was a matter of theft—as well as murder. Whoever killed Mr. Jordan did it for several thousand dollars which happened to be passing through the office that day. My father was supposed to be the only one who knew of the money. And my mother had just undergone a critical operation. Father owed more than a thousand dollars to the doctors and to the hospital."

DOROTHY'S eyes were bright as she listened. "It sounds," she said reflectively, "as if an ugly Fate had pieced the whole case together."

"It was exactly that," Joan agreed listlessly. "Everything worked together that way—as it was my father's fate, and he couldn't escape it. I guess you can't fight Fate."

Dorothy's eyes narrowed shrewdly. "I think," she said with strong conviction, "that you had rotten lawyers."

"It was just Fate," Joan said again, quietly.

"And I say 'Fiddlesticks!'" Dorothy snorted once more. "Your story is perfectly understandable—if anybody wants to believe it. But that's the trouble. People like to believe the worst. I still say you didn't have a good lawyer."

Long afterward, when they had both gone to their own rooms for the night, Dorothy lay awake, turning the whole story over in her mind. And the more she thought about it, the stronger became her conviction that something might still be done about it.

What Will the World Be Like When They Come Out From Play

Policies now being moulded, debts now being incurred in their name, may make the swimming difficult by the time these youngsters are ready to try the deep end. It is up to us to look to it that our children be not sunk because of our carelessness. We cannot probe too closely into the impulses which guide those whom we elect or consider for positions of public trust. This newspaper recommends to its readers a thorough disinterested reading of all the well-informed writers. To that end we are offering the liberal column by Jay Franklin.

"We, the People"

"We, the People" and "It Seems to Me," by Heywood Broun, and the articles of General Hugh Johnson have all endorsed the policies of the New Deal. All three of these nationally known writers now endorse the reorganization (we would say packing) of the Supreme Court. The Register wants you to know what these men have to say. For it is the policy of this paper to give its readers both sides of every question, whether The Register believes in the policies advocated or not. We know of no other newspaper that is more alarmed at the eventual results of over-spending and over-centralization of political power than The Register. And, believing as we do, we think that the people should have both sides of every issue to intelligently decide upon important questions that they, as voters of this country, must face. This is a service that you as a subscriber of any publication should receive and the publishers of the Santa Ana Register are glad to give you.

LETTERS YIELD NEW FACTS ON 1776 DIPLOMACY

BY G. FREDERICK MULLEN
United Press Staff Correspondent

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (UP)—Diplomatic messages of the 18th century, knowledge of the contents of which has been held secret by superimposed pen markings and invisible ink, at last have been brought to light by Dr. L. Bendikson, of the Henry E. Huntington Library at San Marino, Cal.

The veil from such missives has been lifted through the use of modern chemistry and photography by Bendikson, who has revealed his discoveries in the Franco-American Review.

Focusing his search for diplomatic secrets upon four letters, three of which were written to John Jay, first chief justice of the United States, and one written by the Justice, Dr. Bendikson has restored pertinent passages which reveal how American agents worked in France to gain European aid during the critical early days of the Revolution.

More prudent and discreet than his contemporaries, Jay censored letters he received and copies of his own by scratching his pen over incriminating or embarrassing passages. Silas Deane, his agent, in Paris, would write a short, bland note on a large piece of paper, and with invisible ink write the real message on the remaining part of the sheet.

Two Letters in One

Deciphering a message in one letter marked out by pen, Bendikson first made an enlarged photograph of the missive and then examined between the strokes of the original writing and the heavier "staccato" strokes of the superimposed marks was emphasized. He was thus able to eliminate the letter on the photostat, leaving revealed the original message.

A sensitive spot in Jay—his caution about what he put in his letters—was touched by three deleted lines in a letter written him by

HELP KIDNEYS PASS 3 LBS. A DAY

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste.

Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning show there may be something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

An excess of acids or poisons in your blood, when due to functional kidney disorders, may be the cause of nagging backache, rheumatic pains, lumbago, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Deane's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Deane's Pills.

Robert R. Livingston. The letter reads in part:

"I hardly know how to admit your excuse for the reserve and caution which, to your phrase mark your letter, since safe conveyances are very frequently afforded and I do not find that one of your letters have miscarried. I long for that free and open communication of sentiment that makes the soul of friendship."

While in Spain in 1781, Jay received a letter from Benjamin Franklin, who was in Passy, France, which would have been harmless anywhere else, but since Jay was actively engaged in obtaining assistance from Spain, it was potential dynamite. He therefore deleted 10 lines from the message, the deletion making it harmless.

Met Social Troubles

The lines scratched out were: "This thought occurred to me on hearing from the Princess Masserano that you and Mrs. Jay did not pass your time agreeably there and I think that you would find these people of a more sociable turn."

Since no fixative was used by Jay after he had treated the invisible writings of Deane, the letters again had become hidden.

Through chemical treatments and the use of ultra-violet rays and infra-red rays, Dr. Bendikson with the assistance of George D. van Arsden, chemical engineer at Pasadena, found the formula of the ink used in letters written by Deane. Deane wrote his letters with tannic acid and Jay sponged the letters with a solution of copperas, or ferrous sulphate.

Disguised as Merchant

Deane, as the colonies' agent in France, appeared there as a merchant. Fears that he might be tracked down by the British were disclosed by him in a letter to Jay.

In invisible ink he wrote: "I have appeared only as a private merchant, but it has been reported, & I frequently hear that an agent from the Congress is in town & sometimes that he is gone to Paris, etc. I mention this as a mark of expectations of the people which in general is on the same key with their wishes. The English ambassador is apprehensive of such a measure & I expect it will require great care to elude his inquiry."

"The letters I have obtained from hence to Court are given to me generally on the ground of mercantile views and not on any grounds whatever was suspected of any other business. I am Gentlemen Your most obedient Servt. S. Deane. P. S. forgive blunder and spell it out, for I am much put to copy letters in this way."

TO CONFER DEGREE

ORANGE, May 10.—The second degree will be conferred at a meeting of Orange Grove lodge No. 293, F. and A. M., tomorrow night at 7:30 p.m. It is announced by H. Z. Adams, secretary of the lodge.

WELCOME TO GLENN MARTIN

Today Glenn Martin re-enacted his memorable flight of twenty-five years ago when he made the first flight from Newport Beach to Avalon, Catalina Island.

It was just twenty-five years ago today that Martin, then an ambitious young man of 26, took his life into his hands in an endeavor to make history. Glenn Martin still is making history. His flying clippers are making regular scheduled flights to Honolulu, the Philippine Islands and China.

It's a far cry from the frail pusher-type plane Martin piloted across the channel to Catalina on May 10, 1912, and the huge clipper he flew today over the same route. His plane of twenty-five years ago is pictured elsewhere in today's Register. His giant clipper is shown in the same layout. A glance at the two pictures tells more than mere words are able to convey.

Glenn Martin is a local boy who has made good. A trite phrase indeed, but it carries worlds of meaning.

Today Glenn Martin is the head of the greatest airplane factory in the world. Twenty-five years ago he had a dream. That dream has come true and all Orange county today pays tribute to the man who, with his mother as his inspiration, wouldn't be turned back. Trials, tribulations and discouragements were but stepping stones to success for Glenn L. Martin.

A HEALTHY SIGN

Revival of the old-fashioned spelling bee by the sixth grade pupils of the Santa Ana schools was one of the features of the program during Public Schools Week.

Singularly spelling bees are becoming popular throughout the country—a healthy sign that this country at last is emerging from the era of wonderful nonsense.

All of this would hardly be worth notice if it were not for the fact that some of our more aggressively modern educators decided, a decade ago, that all this emphasis on spelling was foolish and uncalled for.

Some strange educational practices grew out of this delusion, and stranger still were some of their by-products.

It was held, for example, that the old way of teaching children to read and write was entirely wrong. Why learn the alphabet at all? Teach the child to recognize words by their looks, instead; free him from the soul-cramping drudgery of the A. B. C.'s and he will learn to read twice as fast. And forget about penmanship.

So the ultra-modernists put the old arts of spelling and writing on the back shelf and shouted hey-hey for the streamlined system of education.

This was all right until some of the youngsters who grew up under this kind of schooling emerged into the cold world and sought jobs.

Against this sort of thing, the old-fashioned spelling bee is a useful antidote.

The youngster who toes a crack and wrestles with "parallelogram," "hypotheses," "benefited," and "emolument" may not be broadening his mind very much, but he will at least be able to write a business letter without causing the recipient to wonder what unlettered mountaineer has been playing with the typewriter.

REALIZE CONDITIONS IN PUBLIC EDUCATION

We are glad to recognize the patriotic service of the Rev. Emil H. Kreidt in his fearless expression as to conditions in our public schools, in his Clearing House article in The Register. Would that more people gave enough thought to the education of their children to know how their time and energy are taken up in reading and studying matters that is bound to eventually destroy all individual liberty! In fact some keen students of history, recognizes that when individual liberty goes, religion goes with it.

We think the Rev. Mr. Kreidt expresses the eventual results that are bound to happen to our form of government when he says, "It is open secret that the state schools are honeycombed with socialistic and communistic doctrines that have as their ultimate goal the destruction of our form of government."

A COURTEOUS REPLY

Editor Register: The serious-faceted communication of Mr. W. H. Crocker, with casual reference to making out his income tax report—thereby implying that he is a "bank" "in the money" again—is another indication that the depression is whipped and that "happy days" are here to stay.

Mr. Crocker incidentally refers to by trade name, and gives publicity to, a well-known "sausage" which he asserts is "good for all kinds of ailments, roasts meats, steaks, chops, etc." Apparently he "has something"—in the vernacular—in new advertising. He states that he is already in the "income tax brackets." To employ the words of Col. Roosevelt to Mr. Harriman: "We are practical men"; and I venture to suggest to Mr. Crocker a method of increasing his income, by his special advertising. For instance, his next letter might name a well-known cigarette, and innuendo that its toasted fragrance keeps one's breath fresh and sweet. Then, there are noted cough drops. He might revive the advertising of these famed medicated lozenges by suggesting that he has observed that the venerable founders, despite the whiskers, bear a strong family resemblance to their cousin Al.

In connection with his income tax report, Mr. Crocker is the first to discover and state that I wrote the income tax "schedules, penalties, and gadgets." Mr. Crocker lives at Costa Mesa, near the sea. He has disclosed an analytical and discovering mind, and perhaps while exhilarated by the sweep of the ceaseless frounce of the waves, he may be able to solve the ever-present problem: Why is the ocean so close to the shore?

One may well sympathize with Mr. Crocker, confronted with the novelty of a net income and vexed and indignant at income tax return requirements. Neither Who's Who nor Encyclopedia Britannica are conveniently accessible as I dictate this, and I may only conjecture what Mr. Crocker's business or occupation is.

We know, however, that if he was engaged in agriculture, the chances are five to one that in March, 1932, and March, 1933, he had no net income to report; and that if he was an owner of a rented farm he received no rental, and was obliged to advance the taxes besides. He found conditions much the same, if he was then an owner of city property. If he was a stockholder in an industrial, financial or mercantile business the chances were strongly against any profit. If he owned railroad stock, the net revenues there too had reached the vanishing point. For even the Pennsylvania and the New York Central then failed to pay dividends.

Evidently Mr. Crocker feels resentful toward those who support present policies, which give him a net income to report now. Life has become more complex, it is true. Even the news items a few years ago principally stories of crimes and suicides, were short and clear, mate goal the destruction of our form of government."

The pity is that the leaders of education have been so negligent in their study of the great thinkers of the ages that they do not even realize what they are doing. The kindest thing we can say of them is what Jesus said of the mob, "Forgive them for they know not what they do." They have no intention of overthrowing the government. Many of them believe they are patriotic citizens and advocating things that are necessary but we doubt whether they have ever read, and if they did read could understand, the men who set forth the principles that made a high standard of civilization possible.

It has been repeatedly said that no man should ever attempt to legislate or educate until he had at least read three fundamental books—Plato's "Idea of the Republic", Adam Smith's "Wealth of Nations" and Lecky's "History of European Morals". Our modern educational leaders now say that things are different and that it is not necessary to understand what these great thinkers expounded. To thinking people, sound principles never change. Wishful thinking changes principles to suit their wishes. Our leaders of public education probably have been too busy playing politics that they have never had much time to read anything of importance. It is by playing politics that they have secured their high positions.

Would that more people took interest in education, like the Rev. Mr. Kreidt does! Come again Mr. Kreidt to our columns.

HAVE WE HAD OPPORTUNITIES?

We now hear most every day that there are no opportunities for a poor man. This is undoubtedly true and has always been true, unless the poor boy has ability and can deliver what the world wants.

B. C. Forbes, in his article, points out that many of our prominent citizens do not come from American stock; that possibly our educational institutions are so soft that they do not develop mental fiber. This is in harmony with a recent article in the Atlantic Monthly, pointing out that in the United States our educational institutions, instead of developing the bright children, waste their time when their minds should be stimulated.

As to the fruits of hard work, a brief review of William S. Knudsen's life, newly elected president of the General Motors, should be of interest.

Mr. Forbes points out in his column that Mr. Knudsen came to this country when he was 20 years old without money or friends and with only book knowledge of the English language. His giant stature won him his first job as shipyard worker.

We quote from Mr. Forbes:

"He worked hard, studied hard. In job after job he made good.

Once he gave up $100 a month for a $10.50 per week job in a plant where he sensed there were opportunities for advancement. His judgment proved sound. He became superintendent.

When the automobile was coming rapidly to the front, Knudsen, who had developed mechanical genius, tried to show Ford's engineering department how his concern could supply better crank cases for less money. He was making little headway with his explanations and blackboard drawings until a visitor came in, listened, grasped the value of Knudsen's suggestion, introduced himself with the words "I'm Mr. Ford," and told Knudsen to go ahead and supply his new type of crank cases.

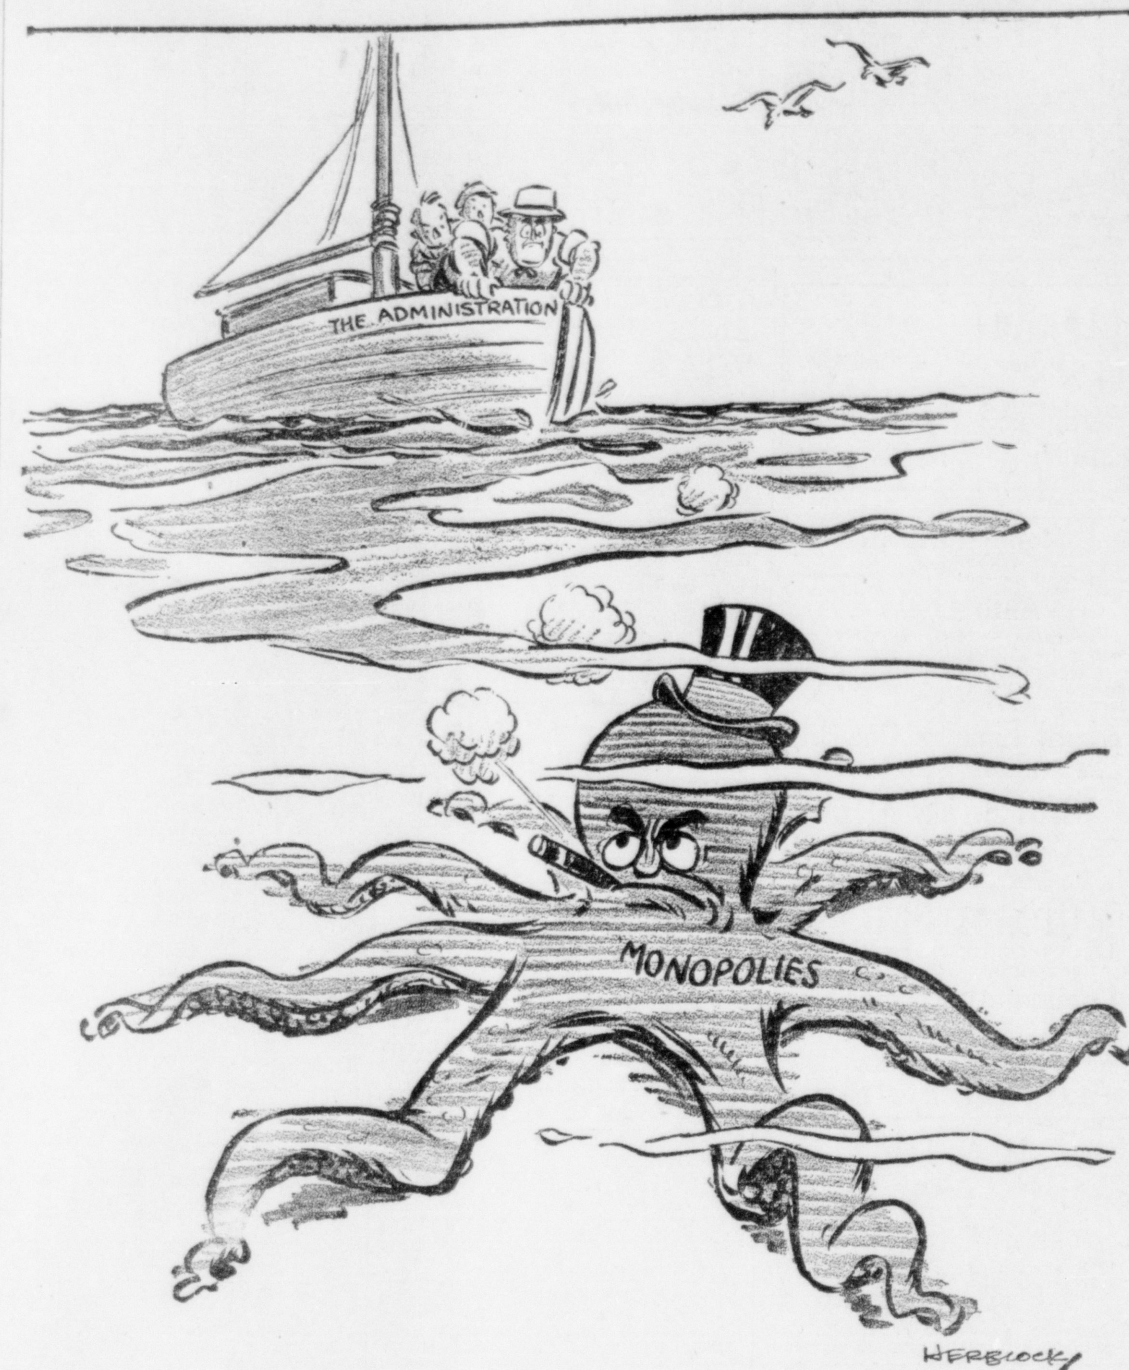

Ford kept his eye on him, took over the plant and Knudsen with it, and in a few years the industrious, resourceful, inventive Dane was drawing $50,000 a year as Ford's production manager.

It has taken Knudsen only fifteen years to rise from vice president of Chevrolet to president, at 55, of the gigantic General Motors Corporation."

Too many men fail to succeed because they are interested only in the present compensation. It will be noted that Mr. Knudsen was willing to sacrifice present pay in order to have an opportunity to learn. The real reward in any important job is a man's opportunity to learn and develop his intellect. A job that only pays money is not interesting to a man or boy who has foresight.

Friendship is enjoyed proportionately as it is desired, and only grows up, is nourished, and improves by enjoyment, as being spiritual, and the soul growing more perfect by use.

Some More Deep-Sea Fishing

with inconspicuous accounts of business and financial failures. The following will illustrate: "Rising tides of crime, in widening circles, are keeping city police active and baffled." "Last month's record of 650 robberies reached an all time high."

They were the days when it was considered a favor to be arrested, and a privilege to spend a night in jail, with opportunity to get warm. A daily report in the Los Angeles Times is a reminder: "Sixteen strive to kill selves." "Eight successful in death attempts."

The report of the two aged sisters, here on the Pacific coast, who stole away in the night after penning a note to a young sister that the meager income on which they all had been trying to live would be sufficient for her alone, and whose bodies were left on the beach by the receding tide the next day, was supplemented by the following item from the Atlantic coast:

A little dried-up man of 80, Genaro Trujillo, once prosperous cigar maker, died of starvation yesterday morning in the same dingy apartment in which a younger brother, 70, died last week."

Brevity and simplicity ran through these news items:

"Jobless for the last three years, his saving exhausted and the rent four months in arrears, John Debas, father of four children, committed suicide early today, by hanging himself from a tree."

"Her throat slashed with a razor, Mrs. Carrie Todd was found dead in the bathtub in her apartment. Police were told she had been despondent over lack of money."

"With a gunshot wound through the head, Louis H. Rogers, 79, was found dead in his dwelling at Fort Moore hill, near the hall of justice."

"Police say that financial worries prompted W. H. Wright 55, Hollywood restaurant man, to end his life by inhaling the fumes from the exhaust of his automobile."

The more gruesome stories of family depression tragedies, including suicides preceded by homicides, are omitted; but it may be chastening to recall these milder facts occasionally.

Life and business are now more intricate and perplexing. News items abound instead with involved reports by executives and boards of directors showing betterments and improvements, expansion of business, higher dividends, raised wages, as well as complex accounts of increased car loadings, shipments and sales, and elaborate business charts with lines extending upwards, and reports of growing bank deposits, real estate activity and ever increasing employment. The receiving and reporting of net incomes result. I sincerely hope that Mr. Crocker may be able to withstand the extra strain.

Mr. Crocker's statement that he went to a country school has generated a bond of fellowship between us. I also attended a country school. But there is this difference: he states that his teacher labored, in addition to instructing; while in my instance conditions were reversed, for I, a pupil, worked daily on my father's farm, before and after school hours.

SHARPLESS WALKER.

Editor Register: A contributor to the "Register Clearing House," in your issue of May 4, presented splendidly some of the patriotic objectives of the educational system of our country when he said: "The public schools, without interfering with religious beliefs, are secular schools, established for the purpose of educating the children of American citizens in the duties, privileges, responsibilities and loyalties of their national heritage." However, exception must be taken to various implications of the item in question.

The free public schools of America are a bulwark for the liberty of the citizens and must be maintained, uninfluenced by sectarianism of any kind. Most Christian Scientists send their sons and daughters to public schools; but, as is their privilege, some have enrolled their children in private schools, which may or may not be owned or conducted by followers of Mary Baker Eddy. However, such schools are not under the jurisdiction of the Christian Science church, nor are they authorized by it to give instruction in Christian Science.

In speaking of Mrs. Eddy in his latter years, Mark Twain said: "She has organized and made available a healing principle that for two thousand years has never been employed, except as the merest kind of guesswork. She is the benefactor of the age" (Biography by Albert Bigelow Paine, p. 1271).

Mrs. Eddy's first interest was the advancement of the truth among mankind; in her case, questions relating to money were secondary. Her life experience verifies Jesus' statement: "Seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you." (Matt. 6:33).

Sincerely yours, ALBERT E. LOMBARD, Christian Science Committee on Publication for Southern California.

Better Jobs FOR ALL

—By R. C. HOILES

We often hear it said that the government must centralize power so that all may have a comfortable living because this is a land of plenty.

If it is true that this is a land of plenty, then there would be no need of government regulation, as everyone would have all he needed. The fact that there is not enough for all and this is a land of scarcity, is the only possible excuse for regulation or parceling out of the fruits of production for a more equitable distribution of what is produced.

It is when things are scarce that a united effort and control are absolutely necessary. If a hundred men were on a ship with a given amount of food to last them to port, rationing would be absolutely necessary. During a war, when things are scarce, rationing by the government is then legitimate.

We admit and have always contended that this is not a land of plenty but a land of scarcity. For this reason, we believe there should be a certain amount of government control, as to how much any man has a right to consume when others need things so badly. We believe that the government has the right to appropriate how much each man dare consume but not how much each man dare own or manage. We believe, for this simple reason, that no man would be able to produce a great amount of wealth, if it were not for the natural division of labor, made possible because of government. For this reason, to allow any individual to appropriate for his own use large and excessive amounts of wealth and refuse to make little self-denial, when other people so badly need this wealth, is not true democracy.

The great difficulty is that large amounts of wealth in the hands of an individual cannot be given to any individual because it is given to any individual it would probably reduce the effort he made to increase production. For this reason wealth cannot be directly transferred from those who have it to those who need it. It can be transferred, however, to those who need it without in any way destroying their ambition or morale by having those who have it transfer it into tools and equipment which have to be operated (rented in reality) by the workers. This increase in tools and capital makes greater production possible and when not consumed by the few selfishly, of necessity, goes to the workers. This makes better jobs for all.

Those people who have a large amount of wealth, who are not willing to make self-denial in order that the great mass of people can live better, can be forced to make self-denial by the majority of voters taxing them for not making self-denial for spending too much on their personal living expenses.

2 pins I'd poke him one whether I spoke to him or not. Being a challenge, and the other fellows all started to encourage me by telling us we could lick each other easy, and the first thing we knew was having a real fite last night about 2 minutes till we both felt sick and tired of getting punted, so we stopped and shook hands and now we speak as good as ever.

OUR CHILDREN

BY ANGELO PATRI

THE WISH FOR THE DEED

"What are you going to be when you get out in the world, Jessica?"

"I'm going to be an artist. I love to draw."

"That's fine. I'd like seeing some of your work."

"O, I haven't done much. Just a few drawings in school. But I like it a lot and after I'm graduated I'm going to study art. I want to paint pictures. I adore color."

The worst of it is that Jessica's parents, not overly rich, will let her go to art school if she wants to, and she probably will. There she will very likely discover that she draws feebly, that she has no eye for mass and color and no feeling for the beauty that is art. She is in love with art, but art does not know her and the two will never meet. Another failure will be added to the host that haunts the art schools, the museums and the offices of commercial art works.

Young people are sensitive to beauty, so the arts appeal to them. They are romantic, and in their stage of growth all artists are set in a haze of romance. It is idle to point out to them that hunger and misery and mental agony are not romantic in any sense of the word; that poverty and sudden success are not the essential qualities of a fine artist. Nor does it help to tell them that a powerful creative force within the mind and body of the artist is what makes him the artist. They mistake the yearning for beauty and distinction and romance for the creative drive of the artist. They have a wish and they transform it into a talent, in imagination, and thereby suffer pain and failure and humiliation.

Artists do not need much telling to bring out their gifts. The gift takes possession of the artist and drives him to his goal. The creation comes by way of severe trial and painful effort. I never met an artist who took his work easily. He usually groaned about it, cursed the day it took hold on him, did everything possible to put off the hour of beginning a bit of work. Once well started all else went over the side. It was dangerous to go near him, to interrupt him was to court murder. The creative impulse, busy in its work, is nothing to play with. An artist is one bedeviled, Best leave him to his demon for the time of his possession.

It is right to teach young people all they can learn about art. They need the touch of creative beauty in all they do. They will have a finer appreciation of life because they have studied art and have tried their hands at it. Some of them will be good craftsmen. An odd few, mighty few in the odds, will develop first class power during a lifetime. All of them will be the better for having known an hour in association with great beauty.

The danger lies in aiding children to mistake a wish for a reality. Wishing does not make an artist. For that one needs creative power. Anyone who has that power does not have to be told about it or coaxed to express it. Creative power drives, drives its possessors into realizing its power. Those who do not have it should not be led into making a serious mistake about their life work.

SPEAR MAN

WASHINGTON, May 10. — Senator Borah has his own private method of statesmanship. He generally knows about things before they happen and has an uncanny way of spearing them before they are apparent.

For instance, just a couple of days before President Roosevelt submitted his supreme court packing plan, Mr. Borah went to a microphone and told the country it would be a national calamity to destroy confidence in the courts. Such Borah coincidences have developed too often to warrant any suspicion that the Idahoan is clairvoyant. Rather, he has developed the reputation of being exceptionally well informed. Consequently, when the Idaho oracle arose in the senate the other day with a very carefully prepared attack on Fascism, certain knowing senators in the front row began looking at each other ominously.

Ostensibly the attack was aimed at Mussolini, but nearly everyone knows Borah would not waste his strength trying to reach Mussolini with a spear 3,000 miles across the ocean.

He was obviously tossing at a few suspected downtown Mussolinis a few blocks away.

HINTS

Rumors have been going around for some time that Mr. Roosevelt's most advanced thinkers have advanced their line of thought to an idea of controlling the production of industry. There is even supposed to be a bill somewhere extant on the inside, but no one has been found who claims to have seen it. The supposition is that it represents an alternate new NRA plan, such as the President has mentioned frequently. (He has never mentioned this particular extreme suggestion, and there is no evidence whatever that he is sympathetically considering it as one of his possible new NRA proposals.)

One of his cabinet members, however, is not only mentioning it, but advocating it.

The least that Senator Borah knows is that Agricultural Secretary Wallace has made three lectures at Chapel Hill, North Carolina, recently, laying down a completely thought-out argument for control of industry. It has escaped public attention because he failed to offer the formula for it. That is, he had no mechanical arrangement putting it into easily understandable form. But he had everything else.

In fact, he gave all indications of being an advance agent for a new movement.

THEORY

What Wallace seemed to have in mind is this: The government now controls farm production in effect, if not in fact. At least it is establishing the machinery for such control. It is also establishing machinery for some similar measure of labor control through its new-found strength in the national labor relations board. So what it now needs to complete its economic control over everything is to get control of industry. Mr. Wallace wants particularly to control its production and prices.

Now, Mr. Wallace protests specifically that this is not Fascism. He says he is thinking about some arrangement, apparently, all corporations could cooperate among themselves like the farmers do through their county committees. That is, the farmers elect their representatives to the governing county committees and the corporations would presumably be permitted to do likewise. Mr. Wallace says flatly he would abolish corporate rights and, of course, the federal government would be guiding and enforcing power over the whole business.

In other words, Mr. Wallace is careful to preserve the name of Democracy, but not the substance. In fact, he has already officially titled it "social Democracy."

But what difference this would make to the ordinary citizen is not apparent. All would live in a wholly federal-regulated state, where prices, production and wages would be largely controlled by elective councils under federal domination instead of a duce or a fuchser.

Few authorities believe the President will go for the idea, even in modified form.

HINDENBURG

Unpublished testimony before the house military affairs committee will disclose that the Hitler government sought to purchase the safe, non-explosive helium gas in the United States more than a year ago.

That was impossible, as congress, some years ago, threw protection around Uncle Sam's world supply of helium by prohibiting its export. Only last week did congress move to modify this restriction by allowing export for medicinal purposes. The gas is used in treatment of respiratory diseases.

The policy against export is considered wise for several reasons. The supply is limited and its sale abroad for commercial lighter-than-air dirigibles would naturally constitute a military advantage.

Note—The last helium sold to the Goodyear company is said to have cost $75 per 1,000 cubic feet. The capacity of the Hindenburg bag was 7,000,000 cubic feet, which means it would have cost something over half a million dollars to fill it. However, the Germans have had fairly good luck with hydrogen. No paid passenger lost his life in the German commercial dirigible service prior to this explosion.
